Prince

Ship Hits Again

ALERT BAY (CP)—The Vancouver-based passenger-freighter Northland Prince Wednesday was involved in its second marine collision in four weeks.

The 3,100-ton Prince, northbound from Vancouver to Prince Rupert, hit the train ferry Alaska broadside in heavy fog while steaming through Broughton Strait between the mainland and Vancouver Island.

SHIP CHECKED

Following the collision, the Northland Prince proceeded 10 miles south to Alert Bay for a check and minor repairs.

Four persons were X-rayed and treated for minor injuries. One was detained in hospital. The others reboarded the ship which later continued its cruise northward.

ARM BURNS

In hospital with arm burns was Mrs. Helga Smith of Vancouver. She is a cook aboard the Northland Prince and was burned in a kitchen mishap when the vessels collided.

Treated and released were Mrs. Helen Hayes of Seattle, H. Marshall of Vancouver, and Mrs. Esther McCord of Anacortes, Wash.

ON COURSE

The accident was the second in less than a month for the Northland Prince. On Aug. 4 it collided with the 90-foot fishboat Second One in Greenville Channel, 75 miles south of Prince Rupert. The fishboat sank about an hour later, after the six men aboard had been taken aboard the Northland Prince.

TWO OTHERS

Two lesser collisions were also reported Wednesday in the Alert Bay area, about 200 miles northwest of Vancouver.

An unidentified tug collided with a fishboat identified as the W6, off Port Hardy. And the 82-foot charter fishing boat Trade Winds was holed and being towed to Vancouver by the vessel that struck her, the tug Mary Machin.

Wilson Starts Job Dispensing Plums

LONDON (CP)—Two days after Prime Minister Wilson took personal command of the economy, the British government Wednesday laid out a modest helping of economic sugar plums to the electorate.

It took the form of easing restrictions on time-payment terms on a variety of articles and was calculated to add to the consumer's happiness as well as giving a gentle boost to some industries whose sales lines have become clogged through the credit restrictions.

WINTER WOES

The government hoped, too, that it might have some effect in helping stave off an alarming spectre of winter unemployment. Recent figures have been pointing to a post-war high of 1,000,000 unemployed this winter unless something is done to halt the trend. (See also Page 12.)

As a political byproduct, the announcement from the government's board of trade afforded the British voter a spectacle of a dynamic Harold Wilson getting things on the upbeat personally, a couple of days after bouncing trade chief Douglas Jay out of the cabinet.

READY TO GO

In fact, the series of interlocked measures had been drafted under Jay's tenure and were ready for announcing before Wilson staged a major shuffle of his cabinet Monday night. But the fact they came out of a new deck should do Wilson no harm at September and October meetings of the powerful Trade Union Congress and the Labor party, both charged with the task of

Restricted by Budget

Hellyer Will Chop Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—Reductions in military personnel strength — and consequently in defence commitments — are being freely predicted by defence department sources as a result of the government's clamp-down on increased expenditures in all departments.

The cabinet has rejected the defence department's request for a moderate increase in its budget for 1968-69. The current defence budget is $1,658,000,000.

Informants said Wednesday a ceiling on expenditures while costs are still rising will eventually have to mean defence cuts somewhere.

One of Defence Minister Hellyer's main objectives has been to increase the proportion of the defence budget allotted to capital expenditures — that is, weapons and equipment.

There is every indication

Mr. Hellyer plans to stick to this policy.

The inevitable result, sources say, will be a cut in the manpower strength of the armed forces and in operations and maintenance costs. This in turn will mean a reduction in defence commitments.

Mr. Hellyer is said to feel that any stretch-out of capital programs such as new destroyers and CF-5 fighters would in the long run result not only in delay but in higher costs as well.

Yemen Pact

Nasser, Faisal Smiling

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Egypt and Saudi Arabia have agreed to the formation of a three-power committee to supervise the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from Yemen, Sudan Premier Mohamed Ahmed Mahgoub announced early today.

The agreement could bring to an end a civil war that has raged in the Yemen for five years with Egypt backing the republican regime against royalist rebels supported by the Saudis. (See also Page 8.)

Egypt is believed to have had at one time about 40,000 troops in Yemen but the number was reduced following the recent Middle East war.

After a meeting at Mahgoub's suburban residence, President Nasser of Egypt and Saudi King Faisal emerged smiling and shaking hands.

Mahgoub read a four-point agreement providing for Saudi Arabia to halt its military assistance to the rebels.

Blushing Lake Baffles

THREE MILE LAKE (CP)—Their lake is blushing and the residents of this Cariboo community are baffled.

"First of all it just had a light blush," said Leone Jorda. "Now it's a bright pink..."

Mrs. Jorda said a Quebec couple, who said they were biologists, waded right in and took samples and later speculated it was caused by minerals in the lake.

C. E. Stenton, regional fisheries biologist said the pink coloration could come from an algae which has overriden the normal marine growth, "possibly because it has been a long hot summer."

U.K. 'Hypocrisy' In Rhodesia Smith Target

SALISBURY (UPI)—Premier Ian Smith Wednesday might charge Britain with "the greatest piece of hypocrisy of all time" in refusing to help Rhodesia battle Communist-armed terrorists. (See also Page 21.)

Smith bitterly recounted to his parliament Rhodesia's contributions to the British Empire in the Second World War.

More recently, he said, Rhodesians had fought beside the British against Communist terrorists in Malaysia — "the very men who are attempting to infiltrate Rhodesia today."

Smith lashed a note from the Rhodesian government which the commonwealth office in London refused to accept on grounds it was from an illegal regime not recognized by Britain.

He said Britain's failure to urge Zambia to stop the passage of arms and offensive material, the reception and harboring of "Communist-trained terrorists" and the use of Zambia as a base for offensive operations against Rhodesia was "a most blatant case of British encouraging infiltration into Rhodesia."

Message to Peking

BRITISH SEEK PEACE PATH

LONDON (AP)—Britain urged China Wednesday to open talks on normalization of relations of the two countries, embittered by serious incidents in Peking, London and Hong Kong.

In a message to Peking, Foreign Secretary George Brown advised Foreign Minister Chen Yi of China of the gravity with which the British view the present state of relations.

Brown said he is ready to discuss ways and means of restoring conditions to normal. British officials declined to say whether he proposed a personal meeting with Chen or whether talks should proceed through normal diplomatic channels.

HONG KONG FEUD

The two countries have been feuding over Hong Kong, the British colony on China's southern border. Chinese burned the British legation Aug. 22 and demonstrators in Peking manhandled Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires Wednesday.

The latter was during an anti-British demonstration called to protest a clash in London Tuesday between police and members of the Chinese legation staff.

POLICE FRAMED

Earlier Wednesday, Brown called on police on guard outside the legation and congratulated them for the way they handled the explosive violence by the Chinese, who were armed with axes, baseball bats and iron rods.

The intent of Brown's message was to avoid a total rupture of relations because Britain wants to maintain its diplomatic outpost in Peking. There was no detectable expectation that Chen would agree to Brown's offer.

STRICT MEASURES

All Chinese Communists are forbidden to leave Britain. Peking restrains British diplomats to 400 yards between their home and office. Peking also has refused permission for dependents of diplomats to leave China.

HONG KONG (AP)—A British diplomat was manhandled in Peking Wednesday and Communist mobs rioted in Hong Kong in a violent reaction to a clash in London between police and members of Communist China's legation.

In a dispatch from Peking, the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri said several hundred persons roughed up Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires, and forced him to bow his head.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS

Yomiuri said anti-British demonstrators called Hopson from an apartment for foreign diplomats and demanded an apology for Tuesday's fighting in London, when police battled Chinese diplomatic personnel who brandished axes, iron bars and baseball bats.

In Hong Kong, gangs of inflamed Chinese Communists began roving the streets, rioting and throwing bombs.

Police finally were forced to open fire, killing one demonstrator and wounding two others. In London, Peking and Hong Kong, the issue was this British crown colony on China's southern border.

Rockwell Reduced To Ashes

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—The body of George Lincoln Rockwell, slain American Nazi party leader, was cremated Wednesday and the ashes returned secretly to the party's headquarters pending court action seeking the right to inter them in a military cemetery.

Matthias Koehl, now official leader of the small but boisterous movement, said the American Civil Liberties Union is seeking an injunction in the party's behalf for the right to deposit Rockwell's remains in a military cemetery. Rockwell was a U.S. Navy veteran.

The U.S. Army withdrew permission Tuesday to bury Rockwell in a national cemetery.

Burke's Scores Indifference

Edward's Love Denied Her Due

LONDON (UPI)—The Duchess of Windsor, the American who caused King Edward VIII to abdicate his throne, "for the woman I love," should be given the full rank of a wife of a prince to correct "the most flagrant act of discrimination" in British dynastic history, according to the new edition of Burke's Peerage.

The move is urged in the new edition to be published Sept. 14. An account of the article was carried Wednesday in The Times.

Since the accession of Queen Elizabeth to the throne in 1952, nothing but indifference to injustice could explain the refusal to lift "this bitter penalty which was inflicted quite intentionally upon the abdicated king as the last act of triumph of an outraged and hypocritical Establishment," the article says.

The Duchess, now 71, has been a favorite of the press and fashion leaders for years since her marriage to the Duke of Windsor in 1937, six months after he abdicated his throne for her.

Duchess of Windsor and twice divorced before marrying the Duke, now 73.

The Duchess, in her autobiography, says the duke was enraged when the British government 30 years ago refused to grant her the honorary title, "her royal highness."

***

The author of the article in Burke's Peerage is Philip Thomas, a barrister who is a well-known expert in genealogy and dynastic law.

L. G. Pine, former editor of "Burke's Peerage," said Wednesday night, "The opinions he expresses are his own. Whether he is right or not is, of course, a matter of opinion."

Plums Start

ing at curbs on what the earner may do with his pay packet. The new measures will make it moderately easier for the Briton to use the traditional "never-never" payment system for such articles as automobiles, radio and TV sets, washing machines, refrigerator and furniture.

Restrictions on credit terms have been in effect since July, 1966, as part of the government's program of curbing consumer spending to correct its balance-of-payments situation. Manufacturers' sales on many articles have nosedived, as much as 30 per cent for television sets.

SELECTED ITEMS

There has been some selective easing of the restraints in the last few months. In the latest moves, effective today, the required down payment on automobiles is reduced to 25 per cent from 30, and the payment period lengthened to 36 months from 30.

The furniture down payment is reduced to 15 from 20 per cent, and there is a drop to 25 from 33 1-3 per cent for most other goods subject to control including radios and TVs, refrigerators and washing machines. The payment period is extended to 30 months from 24.

RENTALS TOO

Another major easing—covering a practice that has become a major part of TV merchandising in Britain—is to reduce to 30 weeks from 42 the advance payment required for their rental.

Forces

Informants speculate that manpower policy will have to be reversed — for the second time — and armed forces strength cut to some 90,000 from the present 106,000.

Military manpower was deliberately cut to 109,000 from the 1963 figure of 123,000. A recruiting drive was put in motion when strength fell lower than anticipated — to 104,500 last January.

Reductions may be made in both the overseas and home forces.

Strength of the army brigade and air division in West Germany has already been cut by about 7 per cent in the last year to 10,800 from 11,600. The figure for the brigade — about 6,000 — is still 500 higher than during the 1961 Berlin crisis.

The army at home has an "active" 4,000-man brigade. It was specially raised for duty in Korea in 1950 but was never disbanded after the Korean war ended in 1953.

Defence department authorities now are re-evaluating priorities after their budget setback by the cabinet. They say it is too early to determine exactly where the axe will fall.

Windsor

Queen Elizabeth to the throne nothing but indifference to the discrimination against the wife of her uncle could explain the refusal to lift the "bitter penalty," Thomas wrote.

The duke's principal title now is His Royal Highness Prince Edward.

Thomas wrote that the act of 1937, which deprived the Duchess of Windsor of the qualification of royal highness, did not refer to the duke's ipso facto title of prince after his abdication.

Therefore Thomas wrote, the duchess as of right is entitled to the title of princess. According to letters patent covering such situations and dating from 1917, the duchess is entitled both to recognition as princess and the prefix royal highness.

To give her these titles would not require an act of parliament but royal prerogative, Thomas wrote.

Red Lights Flashing

MANY THOUSANDS of British Columbia motorists already will have planned expeditions over the long Labor Day weekend.

From Friday evening to Monday night's late ferry arrivals the highways will be crowded.

In the beginning, drivers will be impatient to get to their destinations. At the end they will be anxious to get home.

Wherever they are going only caution and common sense will provide their best guarantees of getting there in one piece.

During the Labor Day weekend of 1966 many of them did not make it. Fifteen persons died. This year there are another 45,000 licensed vehicles on the road compared with the 1966 corresponding date, an increase of 6 per cent. That factor, therefore, multiplies the risks on the highways.

Greater than ever before, therefore, is the need for driving with care and attention.

The warning of Assistant Commissioner G. R. Engel, senior officer of the RCMP in B.C., that traffic officers "will crack down hard" wherever violations of the highway rules occur, is timely, and, hopefully, may be helpful in reducing what otherwise could be a devastating toll. Patrols will be reinforced throughout the areas of RCMP responsibility, with additional radar installations.

This is no threat of persecution. It is an intelligent, psychological approach to a situation which worries the public as much, or more than it worries the police. There are plenty of people who no longer accept the risk entailed when driving in holiday traffic. They simply stay at home.

The assistant commissioner's warning is directed to the "reckless and flagrant violator" of traffic rules, for this is the only sort of deterrent that the irresponsible understand.

For the sensible driver the soft voice of reason is enough, and the statistics of the past more than enough, to remind him of the need for patience, good judgment and alertness on the holiday-crowded highways.

Only the fools are heedless.

In the Hot Seat

MR. HAROLD WILSON has shuffled his cabinet, a practice more prevalent in London than it is in Ottawa. Some half-a-dozen cabinet members have been given different posts, one has resigned to take a non-government job, and another has been fired, having inopportunely — or from sincerity of belief — opposed the British prime minister's aim to enter the European Common Market.

The United Kingdom has a large government, half of whom are not members of the inner circle, the cabinet, so changes in the hierarchy at Whitehall are perhaps more easily come by than on Parliament Hill.

A prime minister is the boss of his administration, although sometimes he seems more forcefully so in one country than in another. No one can accuse Mr. Wilson of lacking mastery, however. Whatever his merits or demerits he is unmistakably in charge.

Unlike Mr. Pearson there is never any doubt about who is the head man. Had Mr. Hellyer been a member of a Wilson administration, for instance, he would scarcely have had the free hand that was his in relation to unification of the services.

The chief feature of the changes in London, of course, is that the British prime minister has taken over direct responsibility for the direction of economic affairs. This is explained from Downing Street as analogous to a wartime prime minister assuming control of the defence ministry — like Mr. Churchill for example — to give personal direction of a national effort.

If Mr. Wilson writes as many daily memos to his financial advisers as did Mr. Churchill to his military advisers they are in for a hot time.

Observers see Mr. Wilson's move as putting him in the hot seat, since he will be the target if large-scale unemployment, already increasing in the U.K., reaches a delicate political scale. It is among the Labor government's own supporters that the weight of unemployment will be mainly felt.

The British prime minister is himself an economist, however, so the assumption is he believes he can best handle this crucial aspect of affairs himself. And his opponents concede his brilliance of mind even if they think it politically oriented.

At any rate Mr. Wilson does not lack courage, and is apparently willing to stand or fall by the steps he can take to arrest the decline in his country's economic position.

Toothless Treaty

LET'S BE HONEST. The only good thing, the only hopeful sign to be seen in the draft of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty submitted to the Geneva Disarmament Conference is that the United States and Russia have been able to agree on it.

The texts of the drafts presented by the two mightiest nuclear powers were identical.

It took them a long time to reach agreement; but at least they are agreed.

Whether the draft treaty has any real significance outside of this is open to question. In fact, it seems highly improbable that anything more than talk will come of it. Unhappily, it offers no guarantee to those states not in possession of nuclear systems that their security would be the concern of the signatories.

It is unlikely, for instance, that Israel would give up the option of manufacturing a nuclear device if it meant she would remain at the mercy of her numerically superior and fiercely inimical Arab neighbors. Even if the Arab states signed the non-proliferation treaty Israel would hardly dare to do so without guarantees.

With China's new nuclear capacity on her doorstep, India is not likely to sign such a treaty without something in the nature of assurances from the big nuclear powers that her sovereignty will be defended.

What is required in this treaty to make it effective is some convincing collective security clause; something in the nature of a nuclear police agreement of so formidable a character that no nation or group of nations would dare to make war.

Here, then, is an opportunity for the United States and Russia to make a truly meaningful contribution to world security. They would be joined, undoubtedly, by the other Western nuclear powers, Britain and France. Only by such a solemn undertaking will they be able to corral any maverick state which threatens to embark on a nuclear adventure.

Ha! Missed Me!

Quebec's Part in the Tory Choice

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

WHAT leverage are Quebec delegates going to have next week in the choice of the Conservative leader?

More, far more, obviously, than ever before. Quebec has some 480 votes, just about one-fifth of the roughly 2,300 total.

Will Diplomatic Victory Satisfy Chinese?

Britain Losing Face to Save Lives

Britain appears ready to throw in the towel in its struggle with China. Long-held policies in Hong Kong would be modified and Communist prisoners released in order to safeguard the lives of British diplomats in Peking.

This, it appears, is the gist of Foreign Minister George Brown's new position in offering to sit down with the Chinese to try to find ways of improving relations between the two countries.

Britain thus seems ready to bow its head and allow Mao Tse-tung's men to claim a clear diplomatic victory for the sake of the 56-member British diplomatic community in Peking.

British officials suggest there is no way of reasoning with unreasonable men and their best hope is to secure safe passage for their people out of the China nightmare.

That doesn't mean Britain wants to break off diplomatic relations. Britain was one of the first Western countries to recognize the Mao regime—in 1949. Officials maintain the recognition was justified because it was evident that Mao was in control of China and had the backing of the majority of the people.

There may have been more to the British decision than that. China was a big potential market for British exports.

By
HAROLD MORRISON
From London

But recognition also became a trap. Mao turned his back on recognized standards of international behavior.

It can be said that if British diplomats in Peking have become hostages in the current struggle, so have Chinese diplomats in London. But British officials have concluded that, in Peking's eyes, the Chinese diplomats in Britain are expendable.

Not so the British diplomats, their wives and children in Peking. The foreign office is gravely anxious to get them out.

Some of Britain's current difficulties with China sprang from the determined position of Hong Kong authorities that those who instigated riots and bloodshed should not go unpunished. Offenders were sentenced in a democratic court and jailed. Officials fear the fury of Peking's revenge has not yet run its course.

The reasoning is that it is better to yield a bit in Hong Kong and, if necessary, elsewhere than to allow Britons in Peking to face further humiliation and an unpredictable fate.

The big question in London is whether the Chinese government is ready to accept a diplomatic victory. It has the upper hand and it knows it.

Enormous Financial Asset

China's Hong Kong Stand Economically Illogical

By BOB CURRIE
From London

The British crown colony of Hong Kong, centre of the current uproar, is an enormous economic asset to China. Last year it bought about $500,000,000 worth of Chinese goods and is said to provide from 25 to 50 per cent of China's foreign exchange earnings.

Logic would suggest that Peking would preserve Hong Kong's status quo, at least as long as its existence is useful.

Thus there appears no rational reason why Peking should decide to use the closing of three pro-Peking newspapers in Hong Kong, and arrest of their executives, as a showdown with Britain at this time.

Because Britain would not meet certain Chinese conditions, particularly the Communists' claim to Taiwan—Nationalist China—relations have been maintained with charges d'affaires in London and Peking, rather than at ambassadorial level. But last year Britain exported about $97,700,000 in goods to China and imported $101,400,000.

In view of this, it seems illogical to diplomatic observers that the Peking government should, as it did, give its official sanction to the sacking of the British mission in Peking.

These actions again invite the oft-asked question: Is China a "functioning" country? Is Chairman Mao Tse-tung really in charge, directing strategy which has brought diplomatic relations with Britain and Russia to near collapse? Or has an anarchic situation developed in which extremists take actions over which Mao has no control?

The fortunes of Hong Kong — "Fragrant harbor" in Chinese — have risen and fallen like the tides in its 126 years under the Union Jack. Today it has a jam-packed population of about 4,000,000 with 98 per cent of them Chinese.

It is said that every few years throughout its colorful history the pessimists have predicted that Hong Kong was doomed. Now they are saying it again.

Perspective on Polling

Vietnam Corruption Politically Irrelevant

By JOSEPH KRAFT
from Saigon

The purpose of elections is not to elect undisciplined expressions of chemically pure public opinion. It is to yield governments with enough popularity to do constructive things on an enduring basis.

By that standard the elections coming up this weekend here in Vietnam, while not altogether promising, may yet have a modest utility. And the issue of fraud which so many people believe to be dominant is almost irrelevant.

Not that the voting will be fair, by even Chicago standards. The central condition in this country — a condition consistently overlooked in the United States but impossible to ignore here — is the enormous military presence sustaining the Saigon authorities.

It numbers over 1,000,000 persons — 400,000 American troops; 300,000 Vietnamese regulars; more than 300,000 Vietnamese militia and police. One out of every 17 persons in the country is a member of the security forces. The ratio of security force to voters is positively staggering.

There is one member of the security force for every five voters.

These forces, moreover, are more than merely protective agents. The Saigon government is manned chiefly by military men. Province chiefs and district chiefs are mainly military men. The military tax, conscript, educate, imprison, transport, and maintain the economy. They run the country.

Their role in the electoral process is necessarily large. The military operate the registration system, set up the polling place, transport candidates to voters, and bring voters to campaign rallies and to the polls.

City-dwellers may be independent of military presence, even if they cannot be oblivious of it. But in the countryside peasants take their lead in all things from the men who run the village. Even if they wanted to, the military could not help but influence votes.

That is why the military ticket — the ticket headed by General Nguyen Van Thieu and Nguyen Cao Ky — is the overwhelming favorite in the election.

But if the advantage of incumbency is probably decisive in a way that's hardly fair, it cannot truly be considered fraudulent. On the contrary the special advantage is in the nature of things, an accepted part of the

Expulsion Demanded

Missionaries Face Animosity in India

By ARTHUR J. DOMMEN, from New Delhi

A high official of the right-wing Jana Sangh political party has called for the expulsion of all foreign missionaries from India.

The 5,319 foreign missionaries living in the country have become a centre of controversy because of the Indian government's decision last month to expel several missionaries from politically sensitive areas of eastern India.

The government has said the expulsion orders and the decision not to allow any more missionaries into eastern India are motivated by a desire to replace foreigners with Indian missionaries. Jaganath Rao Joshi, general secretary of the Jana Sangh Party, which stands for Hindu revivalism, said in Calcutta in the south Indian state of Kerala this week:

"We should be careful not only about the Red Guards but also about the white guards masquerading under the garb of priests."

Referring to the missionaries of foreign nationality, Joshi was quoted as saying "They are trying to propagate their politics in the country. This will affect the unity of our country."

The Jana Sangh is an opposition party in the Indian parliament, but is a member of coalitions governing several Indian states.

Destalinization Process Goes On

By HENRY SHAPIRO
From Moscow

The process of destalinization, somewhat muted as it may be this jubilee year of the Soviet regime, goes on nevertheless without interruption.

It is not known as destalinization here but is described as "liquidation of the consequences of the personality cult," a phrase coined by Nikita Khrushchev.

There was more "liquidation of the personality" last week with the ceremonial observations of the 80th birthday of Yan E. Rudzutak, one of the numerous leading old Bolsheviks, exterminated by Josef Stalin.

Another, and one of the few surviving old Bolsheviks, former president Anastas Mikoyan, interrupted his annual vacation and returned to Moscow to participate in the posthumous honors for Rudzutak.

Mikoyan was Khrushchev's principal aide at the 20th

Communist Party congress in 1956 in launching the campaign to debunk Stalin.

Rudzutak spent 10 years in Czarist hard labor camps as one of the leaders of the Bolshevik seizure of power in 1917.

Although a staunch Stalinist, a member of Stalin's ruling politburo and chairman of the Communist Party's top control commission, he was arrested, tortured and shot in 1938.

Seventy per cent of all the party leaders elected to the central committee in 1934 were arrested and shot between 1936 and 1938. Khrushchev told a secret session of the 20th party congress.

Stalin, after his wife Nadezhda committed suicide in 1932, forgot all history and started shooting his former associates and friends, his daughter Svetlana Alliluyeva said in her memoirs published in London last month.

Rudzutak who joined the underground communist party in 1905 was one of them.

Refugees Get Help

JERUSALEM (AP) — The deadline for the return of Arab refugees from Jordan will be extended from today to mid-September, sources said Wednesday. Israel expected to make the announcement today.

A Mideast Solution?

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Travellers from Cairo brought reports Wednesday of a lightening pace by President Gamal Abdel Nasser to nip a possible attempt to overthrow him while he is in Khartoum for the Arab summit meeting.

Marshall Abdel Hakim Amer, who resigned as military chief after Israel's victory over the Arabs in June, was among some 150 Egyptian officers believed seized in Egypt, informants said.

At the summit conference, meanwhile, Nasser is reported to have raised for the first time the possibility of a "political solution" to the Arab-Israeli crisis.

SOME FORM

Conference sources reported that King Hussein of Jordan hinted that he also might be forced to seek some form of negotiated settlement with Israel.

Nasser, it was said, made a strong plea for unity, saying the Arab countries either could surrender or go forward united to seek "military, economic and political solutions."

Hussein urged the Arab states "to face realities and errors with frankness and manliness."

STRONG OPPOSITION

Talk of political solutions faced strong opposition in Algeria. President Houari Boumedienne said Wednesday the only way to get back the territory occupied by the Israelis is to fight for it.

The Algerian chief, a notable absentee from the Khartoum conference, said that anyone who wants to negotiate with Israel should "go alone and not ask other Arab governments or leaders to follow... and thus recognize defeat."

AT SUMMIT

Nasser arrived at the summit meeting Tuesday. Accounts of his sweep against officers in Cairo suggested that he was acting to block any possible rebellion while he was out of the country.

Amer resigned as supreme armed forces commander and first vice-president after the defeat in the war with Israel in June and a large number of Egyptian generals and officers were dropped.

RUDDEN SWOOP

Arrivals from Cairo said Nasser to nip possible rebellion in the bud.

Armored cars and security forces suddenly arrived at Amer's villa and held him and about 12 other officers with him. They were placed under house

Five Oil Firms Nationalized

ALGIERS (UPI) — Five firms belonging to the American Esso and Mobil oil companies were nationalized Wednesday by decrees signed by President Houari Boumedienne.

Nearly a dozen other American firms were untouched by the order and none of the French firms operating in Algeria were affected.

Algerian promised to pay indemnities to the American owners, which together would 32 per cent of all gasoline service stations in the country and about 23 per cent of its major oil refinery here. The amount was not specified, but the government said it would be set "later, by decree."

American sources estimated the total value of the seizure was about $27 million in equipment and annual profit. This included some $21 million in Esso operations and about $6 million from Mobil.

The nationalization order came as "no surprise" to Esso, and a Mobil spokesman at the Paris headquarters said its implications were "somewhat confusing."

Involved were Esso-Standard Algeria, Esso-Africa and Esso-Saharaine and Mobil Oil-Africa and Mobil Oil-Francise. The order did not affect Mobil Sahara and Mobil Produring Sahara, which operates exploration and drilling projects in the Algerian desert.

Courtroom Parade

'Wretched Sickness'

A 22-year-old man, described by Magistrate William Ostler as a classic example of a sexual psychopath, was sentenced in central magistrate's court Wednesday to three years in the penitentiary for indecent assault of a 10-year-old girl.

Richard Cool, 2054 Cameron, was also sentenced to concurrent terms of six months on each of two counts of indecent exposure.

"In your present condition," the magistrate told Cool, "you are a very grave danger if you are at large."

Det. Jack Stone told the court last week Cool pulled a 10-year-old girl into some bushes in the Belmont Park area Aug. 17 and assaulted her.

Cool also choked the girl and threatened to kill her if she told anyone about the incident, Det. Stone said.

The next day Cool twice exposed himself to children in Esquimalt and Saanich.

Magistrate Ostler told Cool: "If you don't have treatment, you will be in jail for the rest of your life."

'First Concern'

"You are a young man with a wretched sickness. My first concern must be for your victim and potential victims."

John Fletcher Green of Vancouver, also known as Jack Hamilton, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary when he pleaded guilty to fraud.

The sentence will be served simultaneously with a three-year term Green received in North Surrey last April for fraud.

Det. Stone said Green promised to pay George Shank, 513 Ridgebank, $1,150 by certified cheque for a house trailer March 18. The cheque was never received.

Scrap Pile Case

Insp. Brooke Douglas told the preliminary hearing he saw Dobrovolsky and another man on a pile of scrap iron in a partially fenced compound on the Songhees Road industrial reserve July 30.

Dobrovolsky and the other man were arrested by police as they walked from the compound carrying what the inspector described as a piece of a Carley float.

Det. Edward Hardy testified to finding 24 torpedo compression heads on the grass outside the fence.

Alan Kramer, a director of Northern Scrap Iron Co., said the scrap iron belonged to his company. The float was worth about $12 and the torpedo heads $2.50 each.

A 20-year-old youth who told police he was attacked by three

Lethal Drug Still Loose

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police continued to search Wednesday for two bottles of a potentially lethal drug lost in the downtown area.

A city-wide alert was given when two bottles labelled prosignine was lost Sunday by a Vancouver housewife.

Sidney Threads

The Silver Threads Service Sidney branch will open at 1 p.m., Sept. 5, in St. Paul's United Church Hall on Malvern Ave.

Cyclist Snatches Purse

A visitor from Edmonton had her purse snatched by a teen-age cyclist as she walked on Mowat Street at about 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Mrs. Margaret Jefferson told Oak Bay police the boy came up behind her, grabbed the purse and rode away, disappearing down Dalhousie. The incident occurred between street lights and Mrs. Jefferson described the thief as being about 14 or 15, with dark hair and wearing dark clothing.

The purse contained money and personal goods valued at about $170, and it was found Wednesday morning on the grounds of Willow school. About $100 was missing but the thief had not found $50 hidden in a bank book.

Lab Spacecraft to Analyse Moon Soil

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — a.m. PDT Sept. 8 — about 12 hours after a flying zoo known as Biosatellite 2 is scheduled to zoom into orbit carrying thousands of insects and plants.

Its predecessor, Surveyor 4, was launched July 14 and worked perfectly until about 2½ minutes before its three legs were to drop softly on the moon's Central Bay. All radio space age chemistry set to analyse the moon's dirt. Surveyor 4 carried a soil digging device. By bombarding the lunar surface with radiators, and then measuring the energy bounced back, Surveyor 5's apparatus will be able to determine the various chemical elements that make up the moon's soil.

The main difference between Surveyors 4 and 5 is that the new one is equipped with a main breaking rocket was to stop firing.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Stewart said the problem is not well documented and needs federal research. But he added: "It is established that certain widely-used types of electronic devices are potentially capable of generating x-rays and that other types of electromagnetic emissions from such equipment can produce adverse biological effects." Appearing before the Senate commerce committee, Stewart supported a bill providing for government standards to control the hazards.

Costly Project Job Vacancies Survey Target

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will reach next month beyond its count of men looking for work to establish a count of work looking for men.

The joint, costly project of the manpower department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics will be the first nationwide survey of job vacancies undertaken by any industrial country.

DBS officials said Wednesday the information will fill a vital need for governments, industry and individuals at all levels of the work force.

The study will pinpoint unfilled jobs precisely and comprehensively.

It will supplement and largely replace existing information provided by manpower centres. The service has always been limited to fragmentary information, related almost entirely to blue-collar jobs.

The new mail survey will poll 5,000 large firms every month and sample 30,000 smaller firms—about 10 per cent—every quarter on a rotating basis.

Results will be published every month, relating to job vacancies over a preceding three-month period. More current information, based on a smaller sampling, will be made available to the manpower service.

A DBS statement Wednesday said the survey will be highly significant for updating information on where labor shortages occur and what kinds of skills various areas need.

It will assist industry in long-term recruitment policies, training plans and capital expansion projects.

Governments will analyze the data for their worker training and retraining programs, immigration decisions, and assistance to labor-force mobility.

The long-established labor force survey has always revealed where Canada's labor is by detailing the supply of manpower.

The new project complements this and fills a big gap in statistical information by determining the demand for labor.

Death-Strip Plan Urged

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. military leaders are pressing the Pentagon to go ahead with plans for a "strip of death" defense barrier across the county to choke off troops and war supplies from North Vietnam, informed sources said Wednesday.

The sources said it was believed approval for the barrier would be handed down shortly. It would run 48 miles along the demilitarized zone from Laos to the South China Sea.

REDS FREED

The report came just hours after Viet Cong guerrillas, in one of their most daring raids of the war, blasted their way into the provincial jail at Quang Ngai in the northern provinces and freed 977 Communist prisoners.

It was part of a series of attacks in the increasing terror campaign designed to disrupt next week's South Vietnamese presidential elections.

ANOTHER LOSS

Over North Vietnam, a military spokesman said U.S. warplanes flew 151 missions Tuesday hitting missile sites, railroad bridges and truck convoys northwest of Hanoi. The spokesman said a marine A6 Intruder jet was shot down, the 17th to be lost in eight days and the 66th of the war.

The Communist East German news service in a dispatch from Hanoi said American warplanes hit the outskirts of Hanoi and Haiphong Wednesday in waves of strikes.

DESTROYER HIT

The dispatch did not list damage, but said Communist gunners shot down two planes, one over Haiphong and the other over the province of Nghe. The dispatch also claimed North Vietnamese shore batteries hit an American destroyer Tuesday.

The idea of a Berlin wall-type barrier has been on the planning boards for months. There was no indication what kind it would be, but experts have made several detailed studies of methods to cut infiltration ranging from massive construction down to simple switch cut out of the jungle and seeded with mines and electronic devices to warn of any attempted crossing.

De Gaulle Told

'Brittany Should Be Free'

LONDON (Reuters) — Two British politicians asked President de Gaulle Wednesday to give more political rights to France's Breton minority, reminding him of his "Free Quebec" speech in Montreal last month.

The small Liberal party issued a statement by its chief whip Eric Lubbock and its Welsh spokesman Emlyn Hooson, calling for the re-establishment of the ancient parliament of Brittany "with full control over the domestic affairs of the people of Brittany."

RELATED LANGUAGES

They suggested that the people of Wales should offer assistance to the people of Brittany because of a "shared cultural heritage." Bretons and Welshmen speak related ancient languages.

"This is, of course, fully in accordance with the offer of French assistance recently made by Gen. de Gaulle to Quebec, and we therefore have cause for believing that the response of the president of France would be favorable," the statement said.

The Liberal party has long urged that Britain should establish parliaments in Wales and Scotland to deal with local affairs.

Jet Home in China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. state department confirmed Tuesday that North Vietnam is keeping the majority of its airplanes in China, but a spokesman denied that the Communist MIG fighter planes are flying combat missions from Chinese airfields.

"I can confirm that North Vietnam is keeping two-thirds of its MIG inventory in China," Carl Bartch, state department press officer, told a press conference.

These planes, Bartch said, are sent to China for maintenance and to train North Vietnamese pilots.

Bartch estimated the North Vietnamese have 70 MIG planes.

Anti-Mao Uprising Spreads

TOKYO (AP) — Radio Moscow reported Wednesday a widespread anti-Mao uprising in China and said in eastern Chekiang province alone 3,000 persons were killed in eight days of bloody clashes.

A Japanese-language broadcast from Moscow, monitored here, said the number of wounded "far surpassed" the dead and 4,000 houses were destroyed in the fighting.

The broadcast did not specifically say when the clashes between supporters and opponents of Mao Tse-tung occurred.

It added similar clashes were reported in China's northeastern provinces, southwestern Szechwan province and in Canton, capital of southern Kwangtung province.

In Canton, the broadcast said, bodies of those who had been remained dangling from utility poles.

A Japanese dispatch from Peking said the Mao Tse-tung leadership has begun passing out weapons to Maoist revolutionaries to meet attacks from supporters of President Liu Shao-chi, Mao's principal foe in the power struggle.

Banks Loser In Bail Bid

Turnabout of Events

NEW YORK (CP)—Hal Banks, in a remarkable turnabout of events Wednesday, was ordered held in custody without bail pending a hearing on a Canadian application to extradite him to face perjury charges.

The ruling by U.S. Commissioner S. T. Abruzzo came in a hastily-strung session within an hour after Abruzzo had apparently settled the matter by setting bail at $25,000, with certain conditions.

Banks, 56-year-old former leader of the Southern International Union of Canada, is charged with perjury in connection with testimony he gave in 1963 before a royal commission inquiry into violence on the Great Lakes.

His arrest here Tuesday night was a climax to weeks of work by Ontario officials and police. Hearing on the Canadian extradition application was tentatively set for Sept. 7, although Abruzzo said it might be held earlier if lawyers for both sides were prepared and time could be found for it on Abruzzo's court calendar.

Within Authority

In the morning session, Abruzzo made it clear Abruzzo from the start that he intended to grant bail, saying: "It is within my authority to grant bail and I am going to grant bail."

After listening to Banks' lawyer, Gerald E. Paley, give a rundown of Banks' career as a union leader, Abruzzo interrupted: "Let's get down to the heart of the matter. Has he ever been arrested? Has he ever been arrested? Has he ever been in jail?"

With that, Richard Kuh, a New York lawyer representing the Province of Ontario, recited several convictions against Banks and added that he had jumped $25,000 bail in Canada after being convicted in 1964 for conspiring in a violent union. He had been sentenced to five years and his appeal was dismissed after he fled to the U.S.

Figure Doubled

"If it is found that he does hold a valid passport," the commissioner ruled, "then I will double the bail to $50,000." That figure was doubled again by the Ontario lawyer but when the commissioner and the lawyers were in a private huddle in the chambers of the court's chief judge.

Who else attended the session, or what was said, was not announced and none of those taking part would comment. However, Abruzzo came out saying he would recover the session on Banks shortly.

At the resumed hearing, Kuh came armed with low bodies covering the proceedings, saying he had mentioned in the earlier session. This time Abruzzo studied them carefully and said they indicated bail should be granted only in "extreme circumstances" in extradition cases. He said: "By reason of these previous

Everyone Knew

Banks said: "It is not right to say I own the yacht." But Paley cut him short saying: "Let me handle this."

Paley, arguing desperately against the first ruling Wednesday, said that Banks had been living and working in Brooklyn for more than three years and that his whereabouts was no secret.

It was strange, he said, that Canadian authorities had picked this time to press charges. In Ontario, Arthur Wishart, provincial attorney-general, had said the fact that the union leader had been involved in a strike was "purely coincidental."

"I stress this," Wishart said. "We have been working for months to perfect the evidence on which we would proceed (against Banks)."

Court officials made it clear that if Banks was returned to Canada he would not be liable to arrest on the five-year sentence he evaded in 1964. The extradition treaty provides that a person extradited cannot be prosecuted or punished on any charge not covered by extradition.

If he were found not guilty in Canada on the perjury charge, he then would be given a certain period in which to leave the country. If he was convicted and sentenced he also would be given time to get out of Canada after his release from prison.

Only if he subsequently returned to Canada, voluntarily, could he be picked up on the conspiracy conviction.

Rhodesia 'Invasion' Worry to Zambia

LUSAKA (Reuters)—Zambia has sent a note to Britain asking it to stop a South African "invasion" of Rhodesia.

Observers here said Tuesday the note referred to reports that South Africa was assisting Rhodesian security forces in operations against Negro guerrillas in western Rhodesia.

Official sources here said the note amounted to a request to Britain to send troops to Rhodesia, still officially regarded as a British colony.

Zambia has consistently maintained, since Rhodesia's white-minority government seized independence in 1965, that the rebellion could only be ended by force.

The note, sent to the British high commission here, said that Rhodesian forces had entered a new phase too grave for Britain to ignore.

It had been learned, the note said, that "South Africa has invaded Her Majesty's colony of Rhodesia."

The people of Rhodesia had decided on their own to overthrow the rebel regime and rid themselves of the scourge of racism, it added.

Dirty Dozen: Action!

By WAYNE THOMAS

The Dirty Dozen are 12 convicted American prisoners, facing death or time for murder, robbery, rape and other violence.

The thought of their being trained in two months to become an effective commando-type force for an assault on a Nazi high command headquarters in France seems on paper, quite ridiculous.

Anyone with a smattering of detail of the Second World War knows the OSS would have made such a raid.

ACTION PREFERRED

Authenticity is put aside in preference to action, and once the film starts rolling (at the Royal) it's easy to see MGM made the right decision from the box office angle.

Lee Marvin, his acting almost on a par with his superb performance in The Professionals, picks out the 12 from an army prison.

Allied Headquarters ordered a raid on a Nazi rest chateau to kill as many senior Germans as possible.

NEARLY ALL

Marvin wins the confidence and friendship of nearly all in the wild bunch, and from one, John Cassavetes, whom he kicks in the face, he commands loyalty.

Using the action-humor formula, director Robert Aldrich builds steadily to a climax, strongly supported by a cast of accomplished actors.

Then, with a scene which would send many SPCA-types into a swoon, more than 50 German officers and their female companions are locked in a basement and blown up.

It is commendable that producer Kenneth Hyman has insisted on genuine Second World War equipment, sets and uniforms in the film, for in that respect it is authentic.

Whatever else, Dirty Dozen is one of the most action-packed war movies yet screened.

Stormy Season Starting

MIAMI (UPI) — The first tropical storm of the season sprang up in the Atlantic Wednesday but forecasters said there is little chance it will affect the mainland.

Armed, with winds of up to 60 miles an hour, was at last word 1,400 miles southeast of Bermuda. The hurricane season starts June 1 and it has been 26 years since the first storm waited this long to appear.

On Aberfan

Robens Speaks At Last

LONDON (UPI) — Lord Robens, chairman of the National Coal Board, Wednesday blamed a breakdown in communications among five management levels for the Aberfan coal slide disaster in which 144 persons died last year.

In his first official press conference since a government tribunal scathingly condemned the board for the disaster, Robens said it might never have happened if the board had been reorganized 12 months earlier.

Under the new three-level management system, it would be impossible for top management not to know about local problems, Lord Robens said.

EVERY PERSON

Every person in the industry had been specifically told his area of responsibility, he added.

Lord Robens, in his annual coal board press conference, described the board's reorganization as "the biggest peacetime administrative change anywhere in the world."

The reorganization took place after an avalanche of coal waste, black mud and rubble engulfed the south Wales mining village Oct. 21, 1966, killing 116 children and 28 adults.

$260,000 Theft Admitted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grace Fisher, 42, pleaded guilty Wednesday to theft of more than $260,000 while working as a bank accountant.

Mrs. Fisher, mother of a five-year-old girl, was remanded until Sept. 8 for sentencing.

She had earlier pleaded not guilty to the charge of stealing the money from a Bank of Montreal branch during the last 10 years.

Judge Maurice Mulligan refused continuation of $15,000 bail on which she had been free.

Prosecutor Don Morrison told the court the theft involved $260,528.64, including interest, taken over a period between Jan. 4, 1967 to April 5, 1967.

He said the average taken per year was $20,000. Amounts in the last three years were heavier with a peak in 1966 of $38,493.

Separatists Protest School Shift

MONTREAL (CP) — About 200 French-speaking persons, many of them carrying separatist placards, engaged in a two-hour shouting session with about 75 English-speaking persons in suburban Pierrefonds Tuesday night.

Police said the session started after members of the Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale started a protest demonstration in front of an English-language school.

They apparently were protesting the conversion of the former Ecole Monseigneur Deschamps into an English-language institute.

Most of the crowd dispersed after firemen connected hoses and threatened to spray the demonstrators, police said.

No arrests were made.

Amalgamation Chestnut Meddling Says Reeve

When the Victoria Chamber of Commerce urges union of area police and fire departments, it is meddling in a situation it knows nothing about, Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich said Wednesday.

There is no need of change in the present setup, the reeve added, referring to a discussion Tuesday at a civic affairs group meeting of the chamber at which it was decided to work toward a general open forum on the subject.

Group chairman Clyde Savage rekindled the old issue when he said that he had been talking to senior Victoria police and fire officials and they were all for amalgamation.

It would provide more efficient service, save money in overlapping administration costs and result in better location of new stations, said ex-reeve Savage.

ALTERNATIVE SOUNDED

He also observed that if municipalities did not do something about amalgamation, the provincial minister of municipal affairs would.

Reeve Curtis said Wednesday he believed Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell and Attorney General Bonner were politically astute enough to know there would be a strong reaction against union.

Mr. Campbell, he added, had "made it clear" the regional district concept is his answer to amalgamation of municipalities or their functions, and these were to be operative, in the main, at local levels.

"I have an advantage over Mr. Savage in that I have some idea of the opinion both in Saanich and Victoria," the reeve said.

NO IDEA

"It seems that he has no idea of the general attitude in Saanich. Additionally, as a one-time strong supporter of total amalgamation between Saanich and Victoria, I have come to appreciate the very definite advantages in maintaining the status quo.

"Without reflecting on other police and fire departments, amalgamation of ours with others is a move Saanich residents would come to regret," the reeve said.

GREAT VALUE

There is great value in emergency services which know the area they serve and there is a highly desirable person-to-person relationship between Saanich firemen and policemen which could not be maintained with an amalgamated force, Mr. Curtis maintained.

Admiral Given Corps Command

Cmdr. A. C. Wurtele will be replaced Friday as commandant of the Victoria unit of the Corps of Commissioners by retired Rear Admiral John B. Caldwell. The commander continues as chairman of the board of governors.

Admiral Caldwell confirmed Wednesday that he would take over Sept. 1. In a statement Tuesday, Cmdr. Wurtele had said he had not resigned: "I did nothing of the kind. It's a private organization."

Individual members of the board of governors of the corps who could be reached Wednesday either refused to comment on the change of command or denied any knowledge of the appointment.

KNOWS NOTHING

Capt. Victor Hadland, adjutant to the Victoria corps and a full-time paid officer of the unit, said he was "just an employee of the corps and I know nothing about the appointment of corps officers."

A governor, Capt. J. M. Grant, refused to comment at first, but did add, "It will all come out in due course, but it would be very disloyal and indiscreet for me to comment at this time. The welfare of the corps is our first concern, so you can put that in your pipe and smoke it."

"DEFINITELY DID NOT"

Major Stanley Okell, another governor, commented, "Cmdr. Wurtele definitely did not resign as commandant."

Rank-and-file corps employees got the following form letter in the mail Wednesday:

"At a regular meeting of the board of governors of this division held at 2 p.m. Thursday, 24th August, 1967, the following appointments were made:

"To be chairman of the board of governors, Commander A. C. Wurtele, RCN (Ret) effective Sept. 1, 1967.

"To be commandant, Rear Admiral J. B. Caldwell, MBSE, CD, effective Sept. 1, 1967.

THE GOVERNORS

The board of governors of the corps included the following: Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes, Brig. J. S. Adam, Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, Capt. Grant, Lt. Cmdr. H. L. Henderson, Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Major J. C. Holmes, Lieut. O. Matson, Major Okell, Air Vice-Marshal V. H. Patriarche, former RCMP Commissioner C. E. Rivett-Carnac, J. A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrow's Ltd., Group Capt. Cecil Wyatt and deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace.

Girl Finds, Delivers Wayward Pills

A parcel containing 200 sleeping capsules addressed to a local private hospital was found by a 11-year-old girl in the driveway of her home Tuesday.

The finder was Kim Procevat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Procevat of 1940 Birch.

The label on the parcel read "doctor's prescription, urgent" and was addressed to Sandringham Private Hospital, 1650 Fort.

Kim phoned the hospital about her find, then walked the several blocks to the hospital and delivered the parcel.

Mrs. Procevat said she did not know how the parcel came to be in the driveway. City police are investigating.

Saanich Bans Open Fires

Saanich has cancelled all fire permits, Deputy Police Chief Joseph Armstrong said Wednesday night.

Mr. Armstrong said this would ban all open fires, including domestic incinerators without suitable covers.

The move was not taken as the result of a rash of fire calls in Saanich, he said, but was aimed at prevention.

Other communities in the Greater Victoria area have had similar restrictions in effect for the past few days, except Esquimalt, where burning is permitted in restricted hours and under full control — i.e. area wetted down and garden hose handy.

False Calls Alarming

The Victoria fire department, plagued by false alarms, had another one Tuesday night when the box was pulled at Pandora and Chambers. Firemen have warned that anyone caught turning in false calls will be dealt with severely.

Why Wait?

Garbage Pursuit Rejoined

A campaign to make garbage collection a regional function will begin Tuesday at the September meeting of the Greater Victoria Inter-municipal Committee.

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich will fire the opening salvo with a request that the whole subject be re-examined.

He will point out that the matter was first brought to the attention of the intermunicipal committee in 1966, and in November of the same year a technical report, prepared by municipal engineers, was brought in.

NO ACTION

Early in 1967 the whole question was laid on the table by the intermunicipal group, pending a resolution report from one of the inner municipalities.

"I think it is most regrettable that the intermunicipal committee, since receipt of this report almost 10 months ago, has taken absolutely no action on any of the recommendations," Reeve Curtis' letter stated.

The reeve said he realized that the intermunicipal committee could go only so far with the question, and that it was rightfully a matter for the regional board.

NOT POSSIBLE

However, it had not been possible to advocate regional control until the regional district had a permanent secretary-treasurer, an officer appointed in recent months.

"I realize that the opinion is held in some quarters that Saanich feels particularly strongly about this because of the main dump on Hartland Road, close to Saanich, but in answer to this I earnestly believe that I would feel similarly concerned if the dump was some distance removed from the municipality I represent," the reeve declared.

His objections to the principle of open and uncontrolled garbage dumping was not confined to Hartland Road, but also to the two smaller dumps on Millstream Road and to any others in operation, Reeve Curtis added.

In his letter, copies of which were sent to Mayor Stephen of Victoria and the Reeves of Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney, Reeve Curtis suggested that visits be paid to the dumps on Hartland and Millstream.

Centennial Copter Lands Tonight

The cross-Canada Centennial Helicopter will reach lower Vancouver Island tonight when it lands in Central Saanich. It lands formally in Victoria the next morning.

Landing site at 8 p.m. today will be near Island View Road, east of the Patricia Bay Highway. At 10 a.m. Friday, it will touch down on Victoria's heliport on the south side of Esquimalt Road in Victoria West.

But Mankind Resists Resiliator

It's Like 'Walking on Rubber'

By BILL STAVDAL

Herb Woodhead wants to tell the world about resiliency, but the world won't listen.

That's because people have rigid minds, he says. No resiliency.

Mr. Woodhead is the inventor of a bicycle attachment which he calls a resiliator. A nasty 61, he enjoys describing himself as "a crackpot inventor."

With a resiliator, he says, a cyclist has "... No aches, no fatigue. You don't get tired."

Bicycle companies and adults generally won't listen to him, he says. But he has gathered a group of teen-age cyclists who back his claims.

Manufactured in Mr. Woodhead's Hope Springs Bicycle Co. at 921 Wharf Street, the resiliator is a three-pound device bolted behind the pedals.

When a pedal goes forward on the power stroke, a wheel and spring riding on the chain cushion the foot slightly. The thrust of the foot is spread over a larger arc.

It's something like walking on rubber instead of leather.

Mr. Woodhead can't or won't explain exactly what happens.

"It took 22 years of study on my part, and I can't explain it in three minutes," he replied when asked on Wednesday.

"I'm not going to talk physics. Adults haven't the mental resiliency."

His Resiliency Club of Victoria, 14 teenagers who "understand the physics of resiliency," has endorsed Mr. Woodhead's theory in a written and signed statement.

A year ago he got a testimonial from cross-Canada cyclist Claude Dube of Montreal, saying the resiliator makes a bike "infinitely superior."

Two independent teenage riders tried out the resiliator Wednesday on a 17-mile ride around Greater Victoria.

The resiliator makes "a bit of difference" going up hills, said Darrell Teng, 15, and brother Victor, 13, of 139 Regina Avenue. They made the test at the request of the Colonist.

Bike manufacturers and scientists have laughed at him, says Mr. Woodhead, a former restaurateur and builder of the Jolly Friar lunch counter.

An inheritance last spring enabled him to climax 22 years of study and work with a perfected resiliator.

He hasn't patented the device.

"I'm trying to give it away to the world."

For the rigid-minded, non-resiliator-oriented adult, Mr. Woodhead has this simple explanation:

"You get more miles per pork chop out of the resiliator."

'Don't Ruin Life,' Hippie Told

Magistrate William Oester sentenced a 17-year-old self-styled hippie in central magistrate's court Wednesday to six months in the Young Offenders' Unit for possession of marijuana.

Glen Stuart Warner of Edmonton was also given an indefinite term of six months.

Before passing sentence, Magistrate Oester said to Warner: "The probation officer's report and your counsel have referred to you as being a member of the so-called hippie community.

"I don't know if you are a hippie. Indeed, I don't know what a hippie is, and in any event, just being a hippie, whatever it is, is not a crime.

"But many young persons like yourself who seemed determined to try the lot, whose only goals in life seem to be self-gratification, a sort of hedonistic homage, an opting out from reality and responsibility, may emerge from your delusions some day to find you have ruined your lives.

"You and your fellows have embraced in a somewhat bizarre manner a very old philosophy which you apparently think is new. It is not the philosophy that is wrong, but your perversion of it."

"I hope that this experience will be very beneficial to you. I hope that it may assist you to understand that, before a person becomes mature enough to exercise the citizen's right to choose his own course, he must be able to recognize what the real choices in life are."

Warner wore his blond hair in a shoulder-length page boy style in his first court appearance but since then has worn it cut relatively short.

Constable Blake Green told the court in an earlier hearing that Warner had admitted in Centennial Square Aug. 1 to having been at a "pot" party, and was sick while being taken to the police station.

Warner produced a matchbox full of marijuana at the police station.

Dr. Charles Gregory, a psychiatrist called by defence counsel Brian Smith, said Warner was of at least average intelligence, but had an "extremely poor opinion of himself."

Dr. Gregory felt Warner joined the hippie movement because of the acceptance he received there.

Technique to Copy*Ingenious Duke Suggests Ideas

By MAUREEN DUFFUS
A recent article reports that the Duke of Bedford has opened his stately home to unorthodox guests this year. A while back it was rustics; this year it's the flower children.

His Grace doesn't know it, but last year it was the Duffus children. Although there was no pop music laid on for them, the Duke in his wisdom provided some splendid entertainment in his back yard.

The stately home itself met with little enthusiasm. In fact, it was considered by a discerning nine-year-old to be rather a shame that a peer of the realm had to live in such a mouldering heap of stone.

However, amenities such as the merry-go-round, the miniature train, the swings and slides, went over very well and cost their parents a fair sum (all in a good cause of course; any right-thinking person likes to help a poor duke pay off £17,000,000 owing to the income tax people.)

It happened to rain (the only spontaneous happening during our visit, though I hear more ambitious ones were arranged for the hippies) just as father was beginning to think he'd contributed enough to the Duke's coffers.

So we had an indifferent lunch in elegant stables until the rain stopped. We Simon-Legged the reluctant offspring into a tour of the famous Woburn Abbey itself, at which point the little one fell asleep on Papa's shoulder, and the older one yawned and sulked his way through the treasures of centuries.

He was fairly astonished at the groto of sea shells, but allowed as how he wouldn't want one. And when can we go back to the rides?

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who was mad at the jewelry store because of the letter they wrote reminding her that they had "carried her longer than her mother" prompts me to write my first letter to a newspaper.

I work in a collection office and am one of those "terrible" people who write those "ugly" letters and makes those "insulting" phone calls. We are willing to make allowances for illness and accidents and unexpected bills out of the city. We even expect people to have a lapse of memory occasionally. We operate on the theory that most people are honest and decent.

Since I have been in this line of work, however, I have learned plenty. I have had people swear at me over the phone, call me unprintable names and hang up on me because I called to remind them that they haven't paid a bill. When we send people out to the house they sometimes hide and refuse to come to the door. They act as if we are trying to persecute them or take something away from them.

Please, Ann Landers, print my letter and let some of America's deadbeats see how they look in the eyes of others. —DISGUSTED

Heirloom Locket For Something Old

An heirloom gold locket fulfilled the tradition "something old" for Karen Valerie Kneen when she became the bride of David William Anderson.

The locket was the only jewelry accent to the bride's empire-line gown of white pearly lace, which featured a full train sweeping back from the shoulders. The bodice was fashioned with a low rounded neckline and sleeves ending in ruffled points. Her four-tier veil misted to her shoulders from a matching headpiece and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and pink roses.

Rev. A. E. King officiated at the candlelight service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kneen, 3386 Connors Lane, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Anderson, 3343 Dale Street. The church was decorated in a pink and white color theme. Mr. Kneen gave his daughter in marriage, Eric Boothroyd was organist.

The bride's two attendants were in matching street-length dresses of strawberry pink pearly lace fashioned on empire lines. Their headpieces were in tone and they carried cascade bouquets of white carnations and pink gladioli.

Senior bridesmaid was Miss Theresa van Munster and junior bridesmaid the bride's cousin Patricia Pateman, Edmonton. Gene Denick was best man and ushering the guests were the groom's brother Larry Anderson and John Pateman, cousin of the bride.

The pink and white color theme was continued at the reception in Hollywood House. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Harry Pateman, made the three-tier wedding cake which centered the head table. John Jacobson proposed the toast to his niece.

Following a honeymoon trip to the Okanagan, the couple will make their home at 2631 Sooke Road.

For travelling, the bride donned a royal blue wool boucle suit, accented with fox fur at the collar. Her hat was an ome and her accessories were in a bone shade. Gardening and cottage completed the outfit.

For the double-ring ceremony, at which she was given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie fashioned on empire lines with a bodice of fine lace. It was topped with an over dress of white organza bordered with lace, and extending into a train.

Her veil was shoulder length in bouffant style, and she carried a bouquet of pink gerbera roses with white stephanotis en cascade. She wore her late grandmother's diamond ring for the traditional "something old."

Green Wigs Match Mink

MONTREAL (CP) — George R. Schaefer, chairman of La Belle Canadienne wig house, says his color for this season is green. "I find that a submerged green is just right not only for the latest and most expensive green mink coats but for the color schemes of this year's dresses and eye shadows."

Tory Beefs Will Get Airing

TORONTO (CP) — James Johnston, national director of the Progressive Conservative party, has been invited to air any complaints he has about the selection of delegates for the Sept. 5-9 national leadership convention at a meeting here Sunday.

Gene Rheame, executive secretary to the convention committee, said the invitation to appear before the committee was included in a letter from any complaints he has about the selection of delegates for the Sept. 5-9 national leadership convention at a meeting here Sunday.

Mr. Johnston had complained that 84 persons who participated in the party's Montmorency, Que., thinkers' conference earlier this month had been added to the list of delegates. He said no more than 30 from the conference should be accredited.

Mr. Rheame said about 50 of those who attended the conference would be accredited delegates. The other 34 qualified as ex-officio delegates because they had helped organize the convention.

The former member of Parliament and other convention officials said anyone who has any misgivings about the manner in which delegates are selected should raise them.

The proper place to raise them is at a convention committee meeting, Mr. Rheame said.

He said no official complaint had been received from Laura Mann of Ottawa, a director of the National Progressive Conservative Association who charged Mr. Goodman was packing the list of 50 Ontario delegates at large.

Miss Mann resigned in protest from the four-member committee appointed to make Ontario selections.

Committee members have denied her charges and plan no action unless a formal complaint is made.

Charlotte Feels Age Right To Head Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, the stormy petrel of capital politics, may be a late nominee for the Progressive Conservative leadership.

"Some are talking this way and if they want to get busy and work and nominate me, I've got my credentials and I'll be there," said the former Ottawa mayor and current alderman.

"If some of them want me, they can come and get me," she added.

DELEGATE AT LARGE
Miss Whitton, a life-long Conservative, has been accredited as an Ontario delegate at large for the leadership convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

She figures she has one good qualification for the job: "I'm six months younger than Dief and about a year older than Mike, and I'm in better shape."

John Diefenbaker will be 72 Sept. 18 and Prime Minister Pearson is 70.

In her usual rapid-fire speaking habit, she says: "All this youth thing gets me. Consider the 20-24 age group who'll be voting in the next election, because Mike won't wait too long. There are about 1,300,000 of them."

Now in the 25-29 age range there are about 8,000,000—and half of those are women. Don't forget that.

"Now then, there are the over 60s. Two million, three hundred thousand of them, nearly double the youth group. And they've had lots of political experience and experience with elections."

"Why, if I was younger I would go out fighting for it (the leadership)," she said.

She added: "I say get a woman in there that's over 25. There are 11,000,000 voters there."

Grasp Chance Now—Manning

Ideal Society In Sight

TORONTO (CP) — E. C. Manning, Social Credit premier of Alberta, said Wednesday at the Canadian National Exhibition that the Progressive Conservative party is in the best position now to formulate a basic and fundamental change in political ideology that could give Canada a brighter future.

Guest of honor for Alberta and Electrical Day, Mr. Manning warned the daily director's luncheon that unless the Conservatives do something now, the ball will pass into the hands of one of the smaller parties or an entirely new political party will be formed.

He said the change in political ideology must be aimed at combining the development of human resources with physical resources.

It must also be aimed at creating an ideal society not based on a master plan formulated by expert planners, but based on the best from men and women left free to develop to their highest potential and interest.

FREE ENTERPRISE

"We can't forget the fundamental purpose of our physical resources—development," he said. "It is to provide man with what is essential for a happy, fulfilled life, and not only for high profits in business, although this of course has its place."

"We must recognize each human being as an individual creature who should be left alone to develop himself along the lines he wants and reach goals he can achieve. We must accept as the ideal society whatever flows out of this free and individual development of men and women. There must be free enterprise in all areas of life."

Premier Manning said the individual is not given a free enough hand in his development. The state was doing more and more for him that he could do equally well for himself.

"The most fundamental point now is to develop a social and national economic philosophy with the free enterprise system as its basis, not only in the field of economics, but also in the social area," he said.

Mr. Manning said the Conservatives have the best national organization and could be successful with such a program. Their economic policy is already favorable for this new realignment, he said.

John D Ordering Posters?

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says John Diefenbaker has ordered 1,500 campaign photos and posters printed secretly in a move which makes it "virtually certain" that he will fight for his job as Progressive Conservative leader.

The newspaper says it has learned that the PC chief placed the order with a printing shop identified as being in the Ottawa Valley.

Mr. Diefenbaker has until 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 8, to enter his name formally.

The Star adds that some delegates to the convention who previously committed their support to other candidates are withdrawing their commitments in anticipation of Mr. Diefenbaker's entry.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Mr. Diefenbaker said there was no foundation to the report. Photo report.

LONDON — Olive Epstein, 30, has been elected unanimously by the board of directors to take over as chairman of the multi-million-dollar Beatles company, Nems Enterprises Ltd.

He was chosen shortly after brother Brian, 32, was buried in Liverpool after a small private funeral restricted to relatives and a few close friends. To ensure maximum privacy, the Beatles did not attend.

An inquest opened but was quickly adjourned to Sept. 8 pending a continuing probe of the unnatural death.

The British enjoy Toby by the Yard

Old English yard glasses like the one illustrated here were very popular in the 18th century, about the time that Toby was first brewed. They were kept in English Inns for a special type of competition that occurred when two gentlemen would compete to see who could down the contents of such a glass first. The yard glass is still in evidence today, and is especially popular with British university clubs where initiates are invited to down the contents of the yard glass in one draught. ## Synod Condemns Bombing But Kills Motion on Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—The general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada called Tuesday for an end to United States bombing of North Vietnam and passed a resolution that in effect condemns the Rhodesian government of Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The synod quickly adopted a motion on Vietnam after it was decided to include a statement from the executive committee of the World Council of Churches.

It later rejected another resolution on Vietnam urging the government to "take steps to decrease with a view to cessation as soon as possible all sale of weapons and equipment of war destined for use in the Vietnamese conflict."

MEDICAL AID
Approved, however, was a motion urging Canada to provide maximum medical assistance for wounded civilians in both North and South Vietnam as this may be feasible.

It appeared that the resolution on Rhodesia would fail but the upper house—the bishops—defeated a motion from the lower house that the resolution be tabled. Motions for tabling are not debatable and that could have meant the end of the Rhodesia resolution, at least for this synod.

The statement on Vietnam said that "peace cannot be made by either side alone."

ALL PARTIES
"We therefore urge all parties, in the interests of greater justice, no matter for what reasons they are still fighting, to take steps now to hasten the work of negotiation rather than warfare."

It suggests that North Vietnam, either in advance of or in response to the cessation of bombing, should indicate its readiness to move towards negotiation and South Vietnam should agree to Viet Cong representation at negotiations.

SOME DOUBTS
There seemed to be considerable misgiving about the Rhodesian resolution until the Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, Archbishop of Rupert's Land and primate, said the desire for independence in "felt deeply and passionately in Africa."

R. T. Dufour, a lay delegate from Vancouver, said "we should clean up our own backyard in Canada before telling other countries how to run their affairs."

Mrs. R. K. Naylor of Montreal said she did not have sufficient information to take a decision on Rhodesia.

Negroes Want Vote Rerun

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Negroes called Wednesday on President Johnson to order a rerun of the Democratic runoff primary in which a segregationist won the nomination for Governor and all 22 Negroes seeking local offices were defeated.

Charles Evers, state head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, wired the chief executive that, since the government had seen fit to send election observers to Vietnam, "we would like to advise you that it would mean much more to America... if you would use your influence and call for new elections in Mississippi."

Evers charged some whites voted more than once in some races, "Klan-type" whites kept going in and out of some polling places and "handpicked" Negro election workers were afraid to really do their job and help Negroes.

Conservative Congressman John Bell Williams easily defeated state treasurer William Winter in the runoff for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The returns also showed Negroes crossed color lines to support white candidates and bring about the defeat of Negro candidates, all of them seeking office at the local or county level.

Negroes cracked the ice in Mississippi's traditional white country governing structure in the first primary Aug. 8 with an unprecedented 15 winning various county offices.

Most of the victories resulted when Negroes managed to poll a majority with the rest of the vote divided between two or more white candidates. In the head-to-head runoff, all 22 Negro candidates lost.

Williams meets Republican Rube Phillips in the Nov. 7 final election. In years past, the Democratic nomination for government has meant election and Williams is favored, but Phillips is expected to wage an all-out campaign.

No Alarm at Vic West Hepatitis

There are 13 cases of infectious hepatitis in Victoria West, and although metropolitan board of health officials are "looking into the matter," they say they are not alarmed.

Adults and children have both been stricken, Dr. G. P. Evans, assistant medical officer of health, said Wednesday.

He said everything was under control in the area and many of the people who had been in contact with the infected patients, particularly members of the same family, had been given gamma globulin shots as a precaution.

Dr. Evans said the likelihood was remote that children who played with infected patients will take the malady to school but "this is a possibility we have considered, and one of the reasons we are keeping a close watch on Victoria West."

Milwaukee

Protesters Dispersed By Police

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Police, moving in with a massive display of force, dispersed Wednesday night a crowd of 200 Negroes demonstrating outside their burned-out headquarters in defiance of an order by Mayor Henry Maier.

Several persons, many of them chanting "Black Power," were arrested.

No shots were fired although police carried shotguns and tear gas.

The arrests occurred at dusk, some five hours after the mayor changed a 30-day ban on demonstrations.

HOUSING MARCH

The headquarters in the predominantly Negro Inner Core was destroyed by fire Tuesday night shortly after members of a Negro group, the Milwaukee Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, returned from a tension-filled open housing march into the virtually all-white south side.

Fire officials blamed the fire on arsonists.

The mayor acted in an effort to cut off further marches into the predominantly Polish section of the city by the Youth Council and Rev. James E. Groppi, a white Roman Catholic priest who serves as the group's adviser.

Your Toss Shows Our Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Audiences bored by actors in Playhouse Theatre Company productions have been invited to throw things at the actors to show their displeasure.

Joy Ogihara, artistic director for the group, said it would be better for the theatre if a dull audience conducted themselves like children.

"Adults will sit quietly through a production bored stiff whereas children will let you know when they have lost interest," she told a service club. "When you are in an audience and become bored start throwing things — then we'll know."

Dead Doctor

Alive At Expo?

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The U.S. government stepped up its investigation Wednesday of a mysterious sea accident that is reported to have taken the lives of Dr. James T. Dodge and three other persons.

The investigation heated up after a note was found on the front door of the doctor's home here. The note said he is alive and visiting Expo 67 in Montreal.

Hand-written on Dodge's stationery and pasted to the outside of the door with masking tape, the note added another bizarre touch to the case of the 58-year-old physician who is reported to have drowned after his boat, the Laramie, sank en route to Florida on Aug. 11.

Dodge was under indictment for boat theft when the Laramie is reported to have sunk.

The note said Dodge had taken the Laramie to Expo and said: "Newspaper accounts are completely fraudulent as you know."

It wound up: "I sincerely regret having any part in such foolishness. His attorney is Milton Josephson in Bordertown. Please accept my apology for the imposition this causes. Respectfully, Beatrice Dodge."

Beatrice Dodge is the name of the doctor's second wife.

Attempts to verify the accuracy of the note through her or Josephson, were unsuccessful. LONE SURVIVOR

The only apparent survivor of the alleged sinking was Chris Brooks, 20, picked up by a freighter. He said the Laramie went down during a storm, but subsequently said it probably sank in a calm sea for some unknown reason.

Francis Gravatt, 28, Mrs. Beverly Minott, and her four-year-old daughter, Kimberly, were also passengers on the Laramie.

In Camden, the U.S. attorney's office confirmed that the investigation it undertook is being stepped up. The FBI and coast guard also are investigating.

Los Angeles

Smog Pall May Stay For While

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A brown pall of smog-tinged with a hot blue haze from thousands of acres of brush fires—covered Los Angeles Wednesday for the third straight day as this mountain-ringed basin sweltered in the worst smog since a decade.

Officials said there was no relief in sight from conditions which have caused first-stage smog alerts the last two days and fanned flames across more than 10,000 acres of tinder-dry brush in outlying districts.

KEY FACTOR

One hundred-degree heat—a key factor in production of eye- and nose-irritating ozone—was forecast for suburban areas through today, along with dry winds from inland deserts.

Louis Fuller, air pollution control chief, appealed to motorists to curtail unnecessary driving.

CAR SOURCE

Fuller blamed exhaust from vehicles as the source of the smog. Fumes in automobile exhaust, rising into the atmosphere from crowded freeways, react with sunlight to create ozone.

First-stage alerts are called when the ozone count reaches 50 parts per 1,000,000 parts of air. The count rose to 70 Tuesday in nearby Azusa, the highest since a 70 reading in suburban Vernon Sept. 28, 1966.

B.C. Economy Staying Healthy

B.C.'s economy continues to show a healthy rate of growth, although it falls short of the exceptional pace of expansion achieved in 1966, Trade Minister Lofmark said Wednesday.

The construction industry, which made a strong recovery late in the second quarter, is expected to be a major factor in continued growth during the second half of the year, Mr. Lofmark said.

The minister added, however, that in recent weeks there had been considerable concern expressed over a possible shortage of mortgage money, though this had not yet been reflected in local building figures.

BANK CHANGES

Mr. Lofmark said the Bank Act changes on mortgages are thought to be responsible for what he termed "the tremendous expansion" in the rate of both residential and industrial construction since the end of May.

The expected rise in housing construction in the U.S. has not yet materialized, said Mr. Lofmark, but strong local and overseas demand has boosted production of building materials.

Plywood production is seeing a complete reversal of last year's slump, the minister said.

RELIABLE INDICATOR

Another reliable indicator of what the third and fourth quarters hold in store for the economy, said Mr. Lofmark, are the employment figures.

"Between June and July 32,000 more persons — many of them students — entered the labor force," he said. "Although this was the biggest month-to-month increase this year, the economy responded well. Employment rose by 35,000 from the previous month and unemployment declined by 3,000."

All pulp mills in the province have cut production levels to alleviate an oversupply situation, but with the number of new mills in production total output was up 11 per cent at midyear.

Mr. Lofmark said newspaper production had fallen off but added this had been largely offset by an increase of almost one-third in the production of other papers and paperboard.

TOURIST SURGE

A strike in the fishing industry has greatly reduced landings of bottom fish, but an expected record salmon catch is expected to boost the value of fish landings in the next few months.

Mining activity was mixed, but industrial sales of natural gas are up, the minister said. Other sectors of the economy registered gains, including sports through B.C. customs ports and at mid-year a 13-per-cent increase in non-resident vehicles entering the province from the U.S.

Mr. Lofmark said the latter statistic "eliminates" fears that Expo 67 would hurt the tourist industry in the west, insofar as U.S. visitors were concerned.

knowledge, education, and wisdom," Dr. Jensen is director of the Mental Health Clinic for the Island.

The group, without government assistance, instituted the camp under the chairmanship of Dr. Martin Zorin.

Dr. Zorin informed the gathering that of the $5,847 collected, there is a balance of $1,285, which together with last year's reserve is almost $2,000.

They and the other 15 professional teachers, or nurses were pleased both with the progress of the children, and of the accomplishment they themselves had achieved.

Firm Holds Line on Fire Rate

PORT ALBERNI — "The company has two positions in respect to fire fighting rates," said Walter Allen, president of the IWA here.

"They have one policy for the man with the power saw at the scene of the fire, and another for the crew boss."

He made the statement following a meeting Wednesday with MacMillan Bloedel senior officials and union executive members.

"We shall take this up with the regional council of the IWA, and it will be pursued to ensure workers on fire lines are properly reimbursed."

Company officials contended MacMillan Bloedel's responsibility in the Taylor Arm fire was strictly that of an agency on behalf of the B.C. Forest Service.

'Two Policies' Allen Claims

They said under those terms, statutory rate for fire fighters would apply.

Mr. Allen said the company admitted employees recruited to fight fire were employed by the company's logging operations in the Alberni Valley.

But they also included men from as far away as Kelsey Bay, 150 miles from Port Alberni, Shawnigan Lake division, 80 miles away, and others from Northwest Bay and Copper Canyon.

The union said agreement with the company and information from the Forest Service showed employees fighting fire came under the terms of the agreement, and minimum rates must apply.

The Forest Service rate is $1.25 an hour, while the industrial memorandum has a base rate of $2.97 an hour.

The union leader said Donald Lankford, assistant manager and legal counsel for the company, was quite emphatic in his statement that those on the fire line could not be paid more, "even if the company was so inclined."

Mr. Allen said "Those were the rates he said must be paid, no more, no less."

"Within minutes of this, Mr. Lankford admitted supervisors who are 'on the payroll of the Forest Service,' are also being paid rates in excess of the $1.25."

Later in an interview, Dr. Tucker said the camp is a diversion from government financial aid. This is the way we have to do it, we couldn't touch the problem right now."

He said the progress of the children who are neither retarded nor unintelligent, but have emotional problems was startling and encouraging.

He said the program took 50 weeks of planning for the two weeks of actual work.

Two of the teachers who worked with the children voiced enthusiastic approval of the camp, Lynda Inglis, and Dolly Gail.

Hippies Are Supermerchants

NANAIMO — Centennial Committee chairman Frank Ney, whose only pace is fast, saw 47 exhibits at Expo 67 in two days.

"My mind can only assimilate so much," he explained.

During an interview, he was interrupted three times but managed to change from one subject to the other without any perceptible hesitation.

Before visiting Expo, Frank visited New York for an appearance on the television show To Tell the Truth as originator of the Great Bathub Race, held July 31.

He found that almost everyone had heard of the race and Nanaimo, but they were puzzled where British Columbia fitted in.

For the first time in the 10-year history of the show, all of the panelists knew who the person in question was.

The show will be shown today at 2 p.m. on Channels 12 and 7. "New York is the first place I've ever been to where you have to close the windows to get fresh air," he said.

He estimated the hippie population to be 10,000 — equalled only by the number of tourists who came to see them.

Although they are very arty, Mr. Ney said they keep in touch with world of commerce, because soda costs $1.50 and ice cream cone $1.25.

A converted candy machine is used to paint pictures for $1.50. Expo, he says, should be seen by every Canadian who can afford to.

"The average Canadian can learn as much in a week there about the world as he would in five years of study from a book."

"La Ronde is the greatest carnival the world has ever seen," he said.

On his return to Nanaimo, he found a stack of mail referring to the bathub race.

Almost all of the mail was enthusiastic about having the race continued as a yearly event, with one exception, which said the spontaneous excitement of the first race could never be duplicated.

per capita number of boats — one boat for every three people."

"The thing that makes bathub racing as popular as it is is that the spirit of competing is greater than that of winning."

"Bathub sportsmanship is in the ancient tradition of Greece, which founded the Olympics, where entering was the honor and winning was just an added honor," he explained.

"It creates a happy environment for tourists, who expect to have fun on their holidays."

"Why shouldn't Nanaimo retain it. We're the marine capital of Canada, if you consider that we have the most

Harmac Mill

Worker's Death Accident

NANAIMO — A five-man coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that John Fenton Humphrey, 44, a Harmac worker, who died Aug. 25, met his death by accident. There was no blame attached.

Dr. Stanley M. Grant, pathologist, testified that Mr. Humphrey's larynx had been compressed and death was due to asphyxiation.

Harmac officials checked gunnery equipment Mr. Humphrey was working on and found no reason for the accident.

Investigations presumed that timber had edged forward on rollers and imperceptibly advanced on Mr. Humphrey. No shout was heard.

'CBC View: No Smog? No Thanks'

PORT ALBERNI—The CBC recently decided to do a new program on the pollution problem in the Alberni.

A producer telephoned Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni, and said the program would include an interview with him.

Mayor Hammer told the producer the pollution problem has been greatly reduced in the past two years.

The surprised producer told him firmly if that was his opinion, he would not be interviewed.

That is the story unfolded here by the mayor, as he and Alberni Mayor Fred Bishop increased their bombardment of the CBC's treatment of the Alberni Valley.

The flying visit of CBC official Ken Caple to the Alberni Valley Wednesday didn't do anything to cool off tempers here, over the recent CBC show Young in a Small Town.

During the visit: Mr. Caple agreed to discuss the situation during an afternoon meeting with the mayors, then left town at a moment's notice.

Van Allen

No Film Shown

He was introduced to the press at a press conference called by Mayor Hammer, then bluntly said he only spoke to Vancouver press, and refused to talk.

He was expected to bring a copy of the television film with him, to see it with the mayors and discuss objections. He failed to screen any footage.

He was expected to take a quick afternoon look at youth spots, accompanied by the mayors and educators who have protested about the film. He stood this engagement up, too.

"If this is an example of how documentaries are produced, and how little faith the viewers can put in the end product, it's certainly time the CBC stopped wasting our money," Mayor Hammer said.

Mayor Hammer and Mayor Bishop spent more than two hours discussing their reactions to Sunday's Young in a Small Town.

Also present at the meeting were William Ramsay, principal of Alberni High, Alex Van Allen, manager of the pulp mill and Jim Simpson, one of the young men featured in the film.

Left Right Away

"We asked Mr. Caple to spend some time with us and to have lunch and look over the various aspects of the valley," Mayor Hammer said.

"He agreed yesterday by phone, but instead left immediately after the meeting."

Mr. Caple bluntly refused to make any statement.

"I have nothing to say. I will see the press in Vancouver."

The mayors said Mr. Caple was defensive in his attitude. Most producers are given a free hand with the productions they undertake, Mr. Caple told the civic officials.

Mr. Caple also expressed the opinion that the picture would not have proved so offensive if Port Alberni had not been mentioned. Then it would merely have been a picture about youth all across the country.

The mayors disagreed. The picture did little for the youth of Canada anywhere.

Shortly after Mr. Caple's departure, the following wire was received from J. Alphonse Duimet, President of the CBC:

"Regret you found program objectionable but cannot accept what they wanted — The fact that they try is important."

"We pit them against their own abilities and limitations, with no pressure."

Dr. Jensen said the findings in the camp are being studied throughout Canada, and they might help establish similar camps across the country.

Most of the teachers and nurses felt that another week would prove invaluable help to the children, but Dr. Zorin said that money was one of the main problems confronting any expansion of service.

Greengage History

By M. V. CHESNUT

The breakfast meal is something of an ordeal for my wife during the holiday season, for with our children and their families visiting us, each demands something different to eat. One demands bacon and egg, another will settle for cornflakes, and a third can't get through the morning without some of Mom's buttermilk pancakes, and Agnes complains she is running a short-order restaurant.

One thing we all agree on, though—our favorite breakfast jam is greengage. We like it much better than marmalade, and on hot buttered toast its flavor is slightly tart and refreshing, quite unlike ordinary plum jam.

Incidentally, the greengage has quite an interesting history. Botanists consider it to be a connecting link between the damson and the plum and it is believed to have originated somewhere in the Middle East—probably Armenia—gradually extending its taste-tinting flavor into Greece, Italy, France, England, and finally to this continent.

It arrived in France in the year 1505 during the reign of Francis I, where it was christened La Reine Claude, after the French queen. The fruit is still sold under this name in continental Europe, although in all English-speaking countries it has come to be known as the greengage.

It takes this name from the Gage family of Hengrave Hall, Bury St. Edmunds, in the county of Suffolk. The head of the family, Sir Thomas Gage, had a younger brother, John, in the monastery of the Charterhouse order in Paris—a monastery known far and wide for the brothers' skill in the growing of superb fruit.

One day a messenger arrived at Bury St. Edmunds with a gift parcel of fruit seedlings from Brother John in Paris. All the little trees were labelled carefully except one, and from this one the tag had fallen off and become lost. At a loss to know what he could call this anonymous tree, Sir Thomas decided to use the family name, Gage. It is from this one tree, in the orchard at Hengrave Hall, all out greengage trees have descended.

If you are ordering fruit trees from a nursery this fall, it is well to keep in mind that there are two gage plums, Bavy's Gage and Greengage. Bavy's Gage is a bigger plum and comes into bearing a little later than Greengage, usually in late September, while Greengage is at its best toward the end of August. Bavy's Gage is a grand plum for eating out of hand, but it doesn't make the jam with the characteristic greengage flavor.

There is another important difference between the two gage plums. Bavy's Gage, sometimes listed in the catalogues as Reine Claude de Bavy, will set a pretty fair crop of fruit even though you have only the one tree, while the true Greengage requires another variety nearby which blossoms at the same time, to assure cross-pollination. The Victoria plum makes a good husband for greengage.

Three-year-old trees, around five feet in height, should cost somewhere in the neighbourhood at $4 each. Such trees should start bearing in their third or fourth year after planting and will average around 40 pounds of fruit the first cropping year, gradually rising as the tree becomes bigger to around 120 pounds.

ART BUCHWALD Draws a Parallel

Bombing Over Canada

WASHINGTON — One of the most reassuring things that has happened in the past few weeks is the Johnson administration's confident reading of what is going on in the minds of the Red Chinese. The President has assured us that there are hardly any risks involved in bombing so close to the Red Chinese border, and we're told that Peking "knows" we have no intention of getting into a war with them at this time.

What has many people in Washington worried is not that the Red Chinese will become involved directly in the Vietnam conflict (we have Dean Rusk's pledge they won't), but that what the U.S. is doing in North Vietnam could start a precedent for future wars of liberation.

Suppose 10 years from now President de Gaulle is "stated" in his efforts to free the French people of Canada from their despotic rulers in Ottawa. By this time he will have committed the French Army, the French Navy and the French Foreign Legion to the war; yet Ottawa has refused to give up. De Gaulle will be faced with a very tough decision.

"Monsieur le President, we have no choice but to bomb Ottawa, Toronto and Winnipeg. English-speaking Canada must be taught a lesson once and for all," a general says. "But if we bomb Toronto, won't we run the risk of the United States getting in the war on the side of the Canadian aggressors?"

"Mais non, Monsieur le President. If you go on the television and say that France does not desire a wider war with the United States, and all she is doing is trying to get Ottawa to come to a conference table, they will have no choice but to stay out of it."

"Ah yes, but suppose the United States does not accept this and feels that her border is being threatened?"

"Do not worry Monsieur le President. Our American experts say the U.S. is having so many riots in their country that they couldn't possibly get involved in a foreign engagement. This is the perfect time to escalate."

"All right, you may bomb, but only military targets. Perhaps the outskirts of the cities to start with."

Three days later de Gaulle is awakened in the middle of the night.

"Monsieur le President, a squadron of Mysteres got lost and bombed Minneapolis by mistake."

"I was afraid of that."

"Do not be worried. We notified Mexico to notify Washington that it was a mistake and that we apologize, and will try not to do it again."

"That's good thinking, General. The Americans must know we have no quarrel with them. Has there been a reaction?"

"The President of the United States indicated he was very angry, but our intelligence informs us that they will not do anything but splutter."

At this point another phone rings. "Monsieur le President, our radar reports that the U.S. has just launched a missile that is heading straight for the French coast."

"You mean they're attacking us just because we bombed Minneapolis by mistake? I thought you assured me the U.S. wouldn't get into the Canadian war under any circumstances."

"Ah Monsieur le President, one never knows what's going on in the minds of those wily occidentals."

Kaye Criticism Grows

HOLLYWOOD-ON-THAMES (NANA) — I don't know where Danny Kaye is at this precise moment, but some American friends of his are in London and putting out feelers about the reception Danny might receive if he were to come to England. The response has been extremely chilly. Danny made his greatest success in London at the Palladium. They loved him. Now they resent him for cancelling his engagement at the Chichester festival theatre in The Straw Man. Danny decided to go to Israel instead. "But he felt so strongly why didn't he cut his Las Vegas appearance instead of waiting until the war was over?" is the almost unanimous criticism. The general feeling here is that Danny didn't want to follow the excellent Italian company which received raves for the same play. I refuse to go along with this. Nonetheless, Danny will need all his courage to return to England in the immediate or distant future.

I paid a second visit to Charley Girl, starring Anna Neagle. I first saw the musical a year ago. Last Friday was the 700th performance and the cash register has rung up over $200,000 in box office receipts. Not bad for a show the critics believed would only last a week. It was jam-packed on the night I was there and is expected to run another two years.

I supped with Anna and her producer-director husband Herbert Wilcox after the show. Anna and I were Cochrane Young Ladies together — the equivalent of Ziegfeld Girls. We discussed Herbert's biography, 25,000 sunsets, which will be published here next month.

In his book, Herbert has a touching anecdote about Vivien Leigh, whose memorial service at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields attracted 1,000 fans, including her first husband Leigh.

Holmes and her second, Sir Laurence Olivier. "In the days when I was very rich, I always gave my stars expensive presents at the end of the picture," said Wilcox, who practically founded the British film industry.

"When Larry (Olivier) did The Beggar's Opera, I presented him with a Corot painting. When they were divorced, Vivien kept the Corot. During my bankruptcy proceedings, Vivien called me and said, 'Where do I send the Corot?' Of course I WOULDN'T TAKE IT BACK."

Herbert, in his 70s, is busily preparing his next project, musical Whiskey Galore on the Rocks, and negotiating with Burton Lane for the music, Joe Stein for the book and Gower Champion to direct.

The first time Miss Neagle saw her husband, she was in her early 20s. After seeing him, she wrote in her diary, "Saw Herbert Wilcox about film work. I think I'll stick to the stage and the chorus."

There are some people here who remember the late Gertrude Lawrence and believe Julia Andrews is not the right person to play her. Julie is Gertrude for 20th Century-Fox and Robert Wise in Star! In some areas, Julie will be better than Miss Lawrence who had her own charming way of tripping up to a high note. Julie, less sophisticated than the late star who knew all the crowned kings and princes of Europe in her London heyday, has that fresh look, her name rings in the dollars at the box office and she can really sing.

It was a double feature for me. The evening I saw The Penthouse, Columbia was showing Divorce American Style. So I sprinted over in time to see Divorce. The reviews for Dick Van Dyke, Debbie Reynolds, Jess Simmonds and Van Johnson were uniformly good.

SYDNEY HARRIS on Youth Worship

Age, Wisdom Despised

The talk at the dinner table turned to the state of old people in our society — the pitiful provisions that are made for those who are not financially independent in their declining years, the lack of adequate homes for the aged, and the generally neglected condition in which elderly people find themselves.

Theodore Haecker, the German philosopher, warned of this trend in the western world, when he wrote, some years ago: "The glorification of physical health and strength leads, first of all, inevitably to contempt of old age, and then to contempt of wisdom."

It is scarcely strange that

North American society, which has made youthfulness the first article in its creed, should show the most contempt, both for age and for wisdom.

All our popular symbols concentrate on health and strength. Our ideal is the radiant young couple seated in the super-powered convertible. They are bursting with vitamins, clear of eye, strong of arm, and dedicated to the famous proposition that retaining one's youth is the most important task in the world.

Our movies, our novels, our popular songs, our advertisements, even our comic strips — they all pridefully portray young love, young married life, or young children. Past 40, everybody is fat and foolish; a stock character on the sidelines in this palpitating drama of youth.

We are impatient with ill health. We apply more cosmetics and ingest more vitamins, pretending that if we look fit, and tell ourselves we ARE fit, then the signs of decay will disappear, and death will be barred at the door by a large sign reading: "No Vacancy — Premises Occupied by Young People Only."

It is good to want to feel young. But it is vain to deny reality, to pretend that 50 is as vigorous as 20, or to make animal vitality the standard of our social order.

When we try to do this, then the old, the ill, and the impecunious become embarrassing drags, and we can only look them in the closet and hope they die without a fuss.

Behind the desperate efforts to maintain the illusion of youth as long as possible lies the equally desperate fear of being rejected by a society which has provided no dignified or decent place for its old people.

And behind the frantic scramble for money lies not so much greed or rapacity as the sad knowledge that if age does not bring honor, it can win a grudging recognition only by its power over the purestings.

'CYC Rather Unpromising Experiment'

MONCTON (CP) — Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba had cutting words Wednesday for the resignation-racked Conservative party of Young Canadians.

"It has been a rather unpromising experiment," he said in an interview while on a tour of the Maritimes to seek support as leadership candidate for the Progressive Conservatives.

"I think there are better ways of attracting the youth of Canada to participate in national affairs."

He had been questioned in connection with the resignation announcement Tuesday of Hon. old M.C. Kerrin, 31, Atlantic regional director for the CYC.

Mr. Shaw, speaking at a reception for the Manitoba premier here Wednesday night, said "I have always admired this man."

The former Island premier said Mr. Roblin was "elegant, profound in his thinking, intelligent and a tremendous Canadian citizen."

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — George Hees said Wednesday increased productivity and a drive for foreign business must be pushed if Canada's economic stability is to be regained.

Mr. Hees is a former trade minister and one of the nine declared candidates for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. The leadership convention will be held in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

Adjourned Second Time

Water Bomber Inquest Needs Expert Witness

The inquest into the deaths of two Sidney men in the crash of a Canoe water bomber July 16 was adjourned Wednesday for the second time to permit the coroner to call an expert witness.

Cpl. DeArmond said it had taken him two days of comprehensive search to find the tree that is believed to have been the first point of impact with the ill-fated bomber.

He finally found the tree, Cpl. DeArmond said after he had studied pictures of the plane breaking up, taken by amateur photographers, and compared them with air photos obtained from the Forest Service.

He said the tree which appeared to have been struck by the tip of the left wing of the Canoe had been about 150 feet tall, and fairly thick at the top.

He said engineer Davidson, who had accompanied him on the search, said the stress marks on the struts indicated the wing tip had bent forward upon impact.

A set of 13 photographs supplied by Cpl. DeArmond showed the wreckage of the plane strewn for about a quarter of a mile in a straight line from the point of impact.

The first sitting of the inquest introduced evidence touching on the identification of the two bodies.

Thomas Swanson, the regular co-pilot of the Canoe, testified to the training and experience of the pilots, and technical details on the equipment and method of operation.

The plane had been called in to the forest fire on Skirt Mountain at about 4 p.m. Sunday, July 16, and was making its third run when the crash occurred.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre set the adjournment in the inquiry into the deaths of Alexander McIntosh Davidson and Robert Thompson Moore after members of the six-man jury had shown a tendency to ask technical questions regarding the mechanics of the crash.

He said the tree which appeared to have been struck by the tip of the left wing of the Canoe had been about 150 feet tall, and fairly thick at the top.

He said engineer Davidson, who had accompanied him on the search, said the stress marks on the struts indicated the wing tip had bent forward upon impact.

Campbell Action Scored

Mayor Hugh Stephen likes the provincial proposal to force action on sewage and pollution projects, but he is not happy with the way the plan was announced.

Sewage and pollution matters are far too serious to be stalled by local disunity, the mayor said Wednesday, although there would have to be clarification of methods by the provincial government.

"I can't quarrel with the idea," said Mayor Stephen, "but I am very much disappointed that once again Mr. Campbell (minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell) chose to announce a major decision without consultation with the municipalities."

"I feel that on matters as important as this he could at least consult the Union of B.C. Municipalities executive and let them know his plans and ask for suggestions."

"But this does not change the fact that I fully agree with the decision taken," the mayor said.

Relief Coming?

Rain Fine, But...

A forecast of rain storms in tinder-dry B.C. this weekend has been greeted with mixed feelings by forestry officials. Spokesmen said Wednesday that weather forecasts indicate there may be a general rain before Friday, with the heaviest fall on Vancouver Island.

The rain is badly needed to cool the extreme fire hazard in the woods.

LIGHTNING DANGER. But there also is a possibility that major weather disturbances on the northwest and southwest coasts of the island will bring lightning and wind gusts to the Interior, worsening the situation, officials said. The rain forecast, however, has given hope for the first real break in the summer forest fire crisis in B.C.

NEW BLAZES. The B.C. forest service reported 288 fires burning in the province Wednesday morning. 30 of them new blazes reported overnight.

Don Owen, chief fire protection officer for the Vancouver district, said Lower Mainland forests are being policed by aircraft equipped with loudspeakers to warn persons violating forest recreational closures they are breaking the law.

"We are flying a great many patrols into areas where the public is likely to camp," he said.

RECKLESS. He said if violators ignore warnings from the aircraft a forest officer is sent in to get them out of the woods and lay charges if necessary.

More than a dozen persons will appear in magistrates' courts this week on charges of disobeying the closure in the Vancouver district.

Charges have also been laid against persons in Kamloops, Princeton, Kelowna and Vernon.

Permits for open burning were withdrawn in most Lower Mainland communities.

WON'T HESITATE. Fire officials warn they will not hesitate to prosecute for illegal burning.

There is little chance the ban will be lifted until the area receives sustained rains, they said.

The Kamloops district with 119 fires burning and Nelson with 118 are the hardest hit areas in the province.

Another District Closes

Another extension of the travel and recreational closure was announced by Resources Minister Williston Wednesday.

He said explosive fire conditions in the Kamloops forest district make it necessary to place a closure on that part of the district between the North Thompson River and the Fraser River south of Quesnel.

All public highways remain open, and those tourist facilities accessible by this means should experience little difficulty.

Resort owners not served by public highways, the minister added, may have their local situations clarified by calling the nearest Forest Service office.

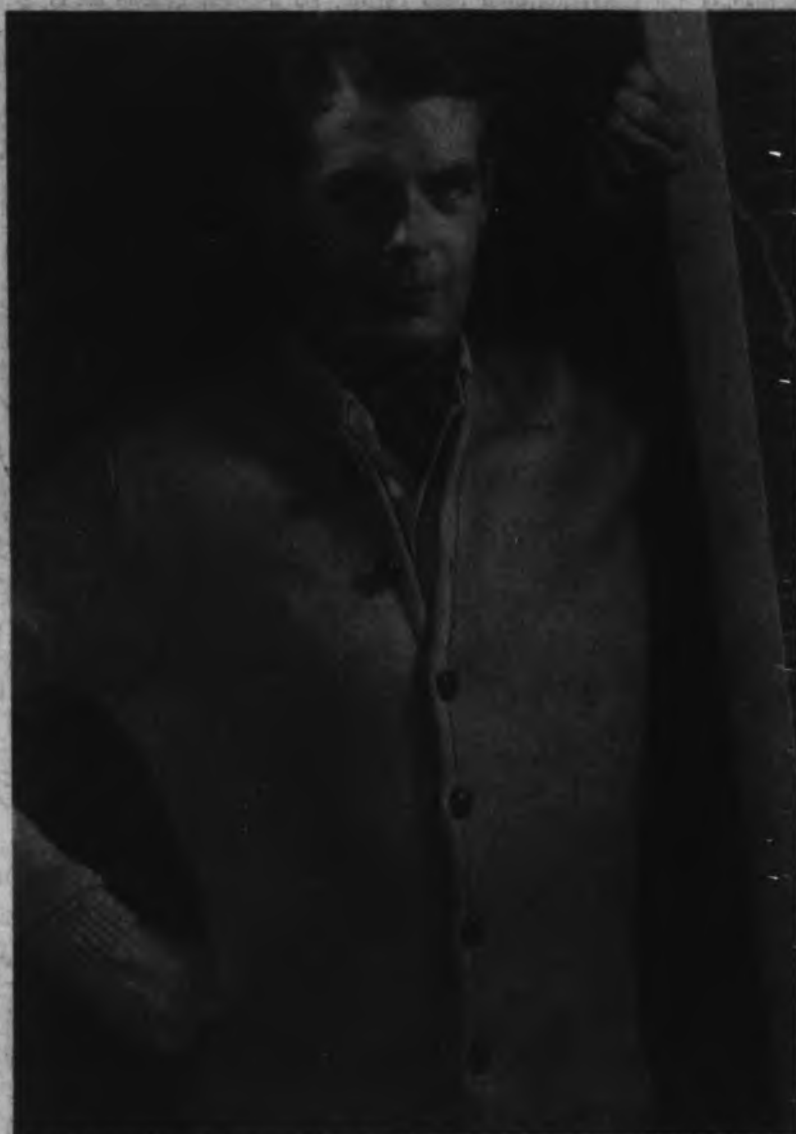

Mr. Williston said the latest ban means the major part of southern B.C. is covered by forest restrictions.

Prince

Ship Hits Again

ALERT BAY (CP)—The Vancouver-based passenger-freighter Northland Prince Wednesday was involved in its second marine collision in four weeks.

SHIP CHECKED

Following the collision, the Northland Prince proceeded 10 miles south to Alert Bay for a check and minor repairs.

Four persons were X-rayed and treated for minor injuries. One was detained in hospital. The others boarded the ship which later continued its cruise northward.

ARM BURNS

In hospital with arm burns was Mrs. Helga Smith of Vancouver. She is a cook aboard the Northland Prince and was burned in a kitchen mishap when the vessel collided.

Treated and released were Mrs. Helen Hayes of Seattle, H. Marsland of Vancouver, and Mrs. Esther McCordie of Anacortes, Wash.

ON COURSE

The Northland Prince, carrying 90 passengers, received a 12-foot bow gash above the water line. The Alaska continued on its southward course. It transports railway cars and freight between Seattle and Alaska.

The accident was the second in less than a month for the Northland Prince. On Aug. 4 it collided with the 30-foot fishboat Second One in Greenville Channel, 75 miles south of Prince Rupert. The fishboat sank about an hour later, after the six men aboard had been taken aboard the Northland Prince.

TWO OTHERS

Two lesser collisions were also reported Wednesday in the Alert Bay area, about 200 miles northwest of Vancouver.

An unidentified tug collided with a fishboat identified as the W6, off Fort Hardy. Another 32-foot charter fishing boat Trade Winds was holed and being towed to Vancouver by the vessel that struck her, the tug Mary Machin.

Wilson Starts Job Dispensing Plums

LONDON (CP)—Two days after Prime Minister Wilson took personal command of the economy, the British government Wednesday laid out a modest helping of economic sugar plums to the electorate.

It took the form of easing restraints on time-payment terms on a variety of articles and was calculated to add to the consumer's happiness as well as giving a gentle boost to some industries whose sales lines have become clogged through the credit restrictions.

WINTER WOES

The government hoped, too, that it might have some effect in helping stave off an alarming spectre of winter unemployment. Recent figures have been pointing to a post-war high of 1,000,000 unemployed this winter unless something is done to halt the trend. (See also Page 12.) As a political byproduct, the announcement from the government's board of trade afforded the British voter a spectacle of a dynamic Harold Wilson getting things on the upbeat personally, a couple of days after bouncing trade chief Douglas Jay out of the cabinet.

READY TO GO

In fact, the series of interlocked measures had been drafted under Jay's tenure and were ready for announcing before Wilson staged a major shuffle of his cabinet Monday night. But the fact they came out of a new deck should do Wilson no harm at September and October meetings of the powerful Trade Union Congress and the Labor party, both chafing at the cabinet.

Burke's Scores Indifference

Edward's Love Denied Her Due

LONDON (UPI)—The Duchess of Windsor, the American who caused King Edward VIII to abdicate his throne "for the woman I love," should be given the full rank of a wife of a prince to correct "the most flagrant act of discrimination" in British dynastic history, according to the new edition of Burke's Peerage.

The move is urged in the new edition to be published Sept. 14. An account of the article was carried Wednesday in The Times.

Since the accession of Queen Elizabeth to the throne in 1952, nothing but indifference to injustice could explain the refusal to lift "this bitter penalty which was inflicted quite intentionally upon the abdicated king as the best act of triumph of an outraged and hypocritical Establishment," the article says.

The Duchess, now 71, has been a favorite of the press and fashion leaders for years since her marriage to the Duke of Windsor in 1937, six months after he abdicated his throne for her.

Born in Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., she was twice married

Restricted by Budget

Hellyer Will Chop Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—Reductions in military personnel strength—and consequently in defence commitments—are being freely predicted by defence department sources as a result of the government's clamp-down on increased expenditures in all departments.

The cabinet has rejected the defence department's request for a moderate increase in its budget for 1968-69. The current defence budget is $1,685,000,000.

Informants said Wednesday a ceiling on expenditures while costs are still rising will eventually have to mean defence cuts somewhere.

One of Defence Minister Hellyer's main objectives has been to increase the proportion of the defence budget allotted to capital expenditures—that is, weapons and equipment.

There is every indication

Mr. Hellyer plans to stick to this policy.

The inevitable result, sources say, will be a cut in the manpower strength of the armed forces and in operations and maintenance costs. This in turn will mean a reduction in defence commitments. Mr. Hellyer is said to fear that any stretch-out of capital programs such as new fighters and CF-5 fighters would in the long run result not only in delay but in higher costs as well.

Yemen Pact

Nasser, Faisal Smiling

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Egypt and Saudi Arabia have agreed to the formation of a three-power committee to supervise the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from Yemen, Sudan Premier Mohamed Ahmed Mahgoub announced early today.

The agreement could bring to an end a civil war that has gone on in the Yemen for five years with Egypt backing the republican regime against royalist rebels supported by the Saudis. (See also Page 8.)

Egypt is believed to have had at one time about 40,000 troops in Yemen but the number was reduced following the recent Middle East war.

After a meeting at Mahgoub's suburban residence, President Nasser of Egypt and Saudi King Faisal emerged smiling and shaking hands.

Mahgoub read a four-point agreement providing for Saudi Arabia to halt its military assistance to the rebels.

Cong Attack Kills 14 Near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong forces Wednesday ambushed a battalion of U.S. Army troops who were patrolling for guerrilla terrorists in the outskirts of Saigon and killed eight Americans and wounded 34 others in a fierce 10-hour battle.

Some helicopters were hit during the landing and additional troops reinforced the beleaguered Americans. Only three guerrillas were reported killed. The size of the ambushing force was not known.

Blushing Lake Baffles

THREE MILE LAKE (CP)—There lake is blushing and the residents of this Cariboo community are baffled.

"First of all it just had a light blush," said Lesma Jorde. "Now it's a bright pink..."

Mrs. Jorde said a Quebec couple, who said they were biologists, waded right in and took samples and later speculated it was caused by minerals in the lake.

C. E. Stanton, regional fisheries biologist said the pink coloration could come from an algae which has overriden the normal marine growth, "possibly because it has been a long hot summer."

U.K. 'Hypocrisy' In Rhodesia Smith Target

SALISBURY (UPI)—Premier Ian Smith Wednesday might charged Britain with "the greatest piece of hypocrisy of all time" in refusing to help Rhodesia battle Communist-armed terrorists. (See also Page 21.)

Smith bitterly recounted to his parliament Rhodesia's contributions to the British fighting forces in the Second World War.

More recently, he said, Rhodesia had fought beside the British against Communist terrorists in Malaysia—"the very men who are attempting to infiltrate Rhodesia today."

Smith tabled a note from the Rhodesian government which the commonwealth office in London refused to accept on grounds it was from an illegal regime not recognized by Britain.

He said Britain's failure to urge Zambia to stop the passage of arms and offensive material, the reception and harboring of "Communist-trained terrorists" and the use of Zambia as a base for offensive operations against Rhodesia was "a most blatant case of Britain encouraging infiltration into Rhodesia."

Similarly, while Edward's brother King George VI lived, the memory of why he and not his elder brother was king might have impeded any reconciliation.

But since the accession of

Message to Peking BRITISH SEEK PEACE PATH

LONDON (AP)—Britain urged China Wednesday to open talks on normalization of relations of the two countries, embittered by serious incidents in Peking, London and Hong Kong.

In a message to Peking, Foreign Secretary George Brown advised Foreign Minister Chen Yi of China of the gravity with which the British view the present state of relations.

Brown said he is ready to discuss ways and means of returning conditions to normal. British officials declined to say whether he proposed a personal meeting with Chen or whether talks should proceed through normal diplomatic channels.

HONG KONG FEUD

The two countries have been feuding over Hong Kong, the British colony on China's southern border. Chinese burned the British legation Aug. 22 and demonstrators in Peking manhandled Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires Wednesday.

The latter was during an anti-British demonstration called to protest a clash in London Tuesday between police and members of the Chinese legation staff.

POLICE PRASED

Earlier Wednesday, Brown called on police on guard outside the legation and congratulated them for the way they handled the explosive violence by the Chinese, who were armed with axes, baseball bats and iron rods.

The intent of Brown's message was to avoid a total rupture of relations because Britain wants to maintain its diplomatic outpost in Peking. There was no detectable expectation that Chen would agree to Brown's offer.

STRICT MEASURES

All Chinese Communists are forbidden to leave Britain. Peking restrains British diplomats to 400 yards between their home and office. Peking also has refused permission for dependents of diplomats to leave China.

HONG KONG (AP)—A British diplomat was manhandled in Peking Wednesday and Communist mobs rioted in Hong Kong in a violent reaction to a clash in London between police and members of Communist China's legation.

In a dispatch from Peking, the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri said several hundred persons roughed up Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires, and forced him to bow his head.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS

Yomiuri said anti-British demonstrators called Hopson from an apartment for foreign diplomats and demanded an apology for Tuesday's fighting in London, when police battled Chinese diplomatic personnel who brandished axes, iron bars and baseball bats.

In Hong Kong, gangs of inflamed Chinese Communists began raving the streets, rocking and throwing bombs.

Police finally were forced to open fire, killing one demonstrator and wounding two others.

In London, Peking and Hong Kong, the issue was this British crown colony on China's southern border.

Rockwell Reduced To Ashes

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—The body of George Lincoln Rockwell, slain American Nazi party leader, was cremated Wednesday and the ashes returned secretly to the party's headquarters pending court action seeking the right to inter them in a military cemetery.

Matthias Koehl, now official leader of the small but boisterous movement, said the American civil Liberties Union is seeking an injunction in the party's behalf for the right to deposit Rockwell's remains in a military cemetery. Rockwell was a U.S. Navy veteran.

The U.S. Army withdrew permission Tuesday to bury Rockwell in a national cemetery.

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Kenny Harrelson will receive $75,000 from Boston Red Sox over the next two years only because he spoke up when someone asked him a simple question.

For answering it, the forty-eight, 25-year-old first baseman-outfielder was immediately fired from Kansas City Athletics by their angered owner, Charles O. Finley, and now there are those who think Harrelson may have talked himself into the world series.

When the A's canned him, Harrelson, a .273 hitter with good power, suddenly discovered himself in the middle of a bidding contest.

Each of the American League's top four contenders, Minnesota, Boston, Detroit and Chicago, made him an offer and the fifth one, California, put in a waiver claim. Atlanta also was interested in the National League.

"I did not pick the highest bidder," says Harrelson. "There were a lot of reasons I picked the Red Sox. Ever since I was in pro ball, I've heard what a first class organization it was. I was told if you have a bad year they don't kill you, and if you have a good one they reward you."

"Then of course, there's the ball park, me being a right-handed hitter, and the fact my wife is from Boston."

TERMS ARE SECRET

Although the money Red Sox are giving him is like something of a windfall for Harrelson, who was drawing only $13,500 from KC, it isn't quite the bonanza it sounds.

The one-time pride of Savannah, Ga., did not reveal what he's going to get nor will he discuss the terms, but it is known that the $75,000 includes Harrelson's salary for the year, a bonus for signing and payment by Red Sox to square a couple of his debts.

Harrelson hit the jackpot when he answered a question put to him by a newsmen a week ago Sunday. The question was:

"What do you think about Finley's firing of Alvin Dark?"

Harrelson, who doesn't lie, says his answer was:

CAME OUT DIFFERENT

In the newspapers, it came out "Finley is a menace to baseball" and that was what the Kansas City owner read. He fired Harrelson the next day.

"I used the term 'bad for baseball,' but I did not say 'menace,'" insists Harrelson. "I told him (Finley) over the phone I never used that word, but he didn't believe me."

Business-wise, the decision wasn't a good one for Finley.

He could have sold Harrelson to the Red Sox and kept the money himself or even gotten at least $20,000 for him by having him go through the regular waiver route.

But Finley was angry and the money didn't matter to him at that moment.

DON'T HOLD GRUDGES

"I've given this whole thing a lot of thought," says Harrelson. "And I know myself when you're mad or hurt, you may say something you don't mean. I've even thought what I'd have done if I were in Charlie's place."

"Look, I'm far from perfect. I'm glib at times and I'm sure I have other faults. But I don't hold grudges. If I were Charlie Finley and Kenney Harrelson told me he wanted to apologize, I think I would've let Kenney Harrelson apologize."

But Harrelson never got the chance, so the Red Sox got him and he'll get 75 'C's.

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE

"It's really unbelievable," he says. "This is something a ballplayer works for all his life. When I said what I did, I never realized it would come to this. Would you believe it? Some people ask me whether I planned all this. Can you beat that?"

Harrelson, who homered his first time up with the Red Sox Tuesday night and could win their regular right field job once he gets his timing back, still stands on one of his previous statements:

"I feel Alvin Dark is the greatest man in baseball and there are 24 other ballplayers on the Kansas City club who feel the same way," he says.

Dark, naturally, is happy Harrelson caught on with the Red Sox.

CADDY FOR MAMA

Harrelson isn't exactly broken up about it, either. He felt so good about the sudden turn of events, as a matter of fact, he went out Tuesday and bought his mama a spanking new Cadillac Eldorado with a canary yellow body and a black vinyl top.

"When I was 14 I promised her I'd do something like that the very first day I could," Harrelson said.

And this was the first day he could.

Tennis Winner at 85

Right at home in the midst of champions is 85-year-old Herbert Spencer who teamed with Al Whiteford to win the men's doubles event in the recent Comox Day tennis tournament. Spencer is flanked by Margaret Gibson (left), women's singles winner and doubles winner with Gertrude Lisborg; and Olive Greenlaw who teamed with husband Bob to win the mixed doubles. At top are Whiteford and Bob Greenlaw, men's singles champion. The men's double final against Greenlaw and Graham Woodward went to 7-5, 13-11 in 80-degree weather.

Continental Drops Admirals

Long Beach Admirals have been dropped from the Western Division of the Continental Football League. The move followed a lengthy meeting in San Francisco which started at 8 Tuesday night and didn't end until 6 yesterday morning.

When it was through, league officials had drawn up a new schedule which provided the six home and six away games in the original schedule.

GAMES SHUFFLED

For Victoria Steelers, it meant extra games against Eugene Bombers and Sacramento Bucs.

Admirals apparently ran into early financial difficulties and when only $50 fans paid to see their home opener against Seattle Rangers last Saturday, general manager Bob Spiller asked for some help.

He requested that the league grant permission to move his club to Portland or allow the Admirals to be a road club the rest of the season.

A REAL PROBLEM

"It presented us with a real problem," league president Peter Murphy of Eugene said yesterday. "We didn't want to approve the move to Portland at this late date and so it was decided to carry on with only six clubs."

"However, we feel that we now have six solid clubs and we are looking forward to expansion for next season to either eight or 10 clubs."

He said that Portland and Spokane were "likely" additions in 1968. Asked about the report that Honolulu was bidding for a 1968 franchise, he said that it would be possible only if the Hawaiians guaranteed the extra travel expenses involved.

LENGTHENED SEASON

The new schedule is as unchanged as it was possible to make it, Murphy said. For Victoria, it meant only lengthening the season by one week.

The Steelers' final game, in Seattle against the Rangers, has been set back from Nov. 26 to Dec. 2. Victoria's home dates remain unchanged.

SOME

Saturday, Sept. 2—Seattle Rangers

Saturday, Sept. 9—Eugene Bombers

Saturday, Oct. 14—Orange County Bucs

Saturday, Nov. 4—San Jose Apaches

Saturday, Nov. 11—Sacramento Bucs

AWAY

Sunday, Oct. 1—Sacramento Bucs

Sunday, Oct. 8—Eugene Bombers

Sunday, Nov. 19—Eugene Bombers

Saturday, Dec. 2—Seattle

(Steelers played other road game at Anaheim against Orange County last Saturday)

Buchanan ended the game with more than 100 yards rushing and Reed had just less than 100.

Lancaster had been a doubtful starter because of a pulled tendon in one foot, but played from the mid-way point in the first quarter without showing any ill effects.

Edmonton halfback Jim Thomas was also limping before the game because of a foot injury, but played all but one sequence.

The Roughriders trailed 10-3 after one quarter, but bounced back to lead 17-10 after three quarters and 20-10 after three.

The only point in the first quarter was a single by Jack Abendach on a field goal attempt for Saskatchewan.

George Reed and Ed Buchanan scored touchdowns for the Roughriders. Abendach had a single, two converts and two field goals.

For Edmonton Garry Lefebvre had a touchdown and Peter Kempf had a field goal and a convert.

LANCASTER MOVES IN

The Roughriders continued to play unceremoniously until mid-way through the quarter when Ron Lancaster moved in as quarterback.

Lancaster used the passing game to loosen up the Edmonton defence, then sprang George Reed and Ed Buchanan free for good gains along the ground.

Red Sox Extend Lead As Twins, Tigers Fall

Boston Red Sox have a little more breathing room atop the American League today.

The Red Sox completed an exhausting four-game series with New York Yankees Wednesday with a 2-1 win while their nearest rivals, Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers were absorbing losses.

Carl Yastrzemski's 11th-inning homer did it for the Red Sox as the clubs went in to extra innings for the second straight game. They needed 20 innings Tuesday night before Yankees won, 4-3. It was Yastrzemski's 35th home run of the season, tops in the league.

John Wynn was winner in relief with four innings of scoreless pitching.

ROBINSON HOMERS

Frank Robinson's 26th home run—a two-out shot in the 10th inning—gave Baltimore a 4-2 victory over the Twins. His blast sailed 370 feet and scored Shotton's bounce to Ray Oyler. Senators, Tommie Agee keyed three Chicago rallies with two singles and a double.

CHICAGO GAINS

Chicago White Sox picked up a full game on the second place club to move back into the thick of the pennant race with a 5-1 win over Washington of the game, was the clincher.

There was still only 4½ games separating the second-place Reds from the sixth-place Braves.

But St. Louis Cards also won to hold their 10-game lead over all their runs in the sixth inning and defeat Houston, 4-1.

Roberto Clemente climaxed a four-run fourth inning with a two-run double that carried Pittsburgh over Atlanta, 13-9.

But St. Louis Cards also won to hold their 10-game lead over all their runs in the sixth inning and defeat Houston, 4-1.

Roberto Clemente climaxed a four-run fourth inning with a two-run double that carried Pittsburgh over Atlanta, 13-9.

Lou Johnson and Ron Fairly drove in three runs apiece, pacing Los Angeles to a 9-3 triumph over San Francisco Giants.

There was still only 4½ games separating the second-place Reds from the sixth-place Braves.

Boxla Series Continues Tonight

Victoria Shamrocks host Vancouver Carlings at Memorial Arena tonight in the second game of their best-of-seven senior lacrosse final. Carlings was the opener 16-6 Tuesday in Vancouver.

Becks knew what it is to be behind. They lost the first two games of their best-of-five semi-final to Cowichan. Adams before finding their form to sweep three games and the series.

They would prefer not to get into the same position in the final and regard tonight's game as a key game although injuries still leave them short-staffed.

FOUR GOALS FOR SCHALL

Gary Schall scored four goals Wednesday as Victoria North American whipped Saanich Wings, 6-0, in the Esquimalt summer hockey league. Geoff Ward got the shutout.

In another game, Larry Meyers scored three times to pace Dave Duncan Shells to a 5-2 win over Duncan Luckies.

Esquimalt Chiefs won their sixth game in seven starts in the Esquimalt Summer Hockey League Monday night, trimming Saanich Wings, 7-1, with Larry Meyers scoring three goals.

In Monday's other game at Esquimalt Sports Centre, North Americans defeated Luckies, 3-2.

There was a report that the Lions will put rookie import guard Jerry West on the waiver list.

Don Mathieson, who spelled Faloney against Calgary Stampede on Sunday, has been placed on waivers, his trial with the Lions apparently ended with the one game.

But another quarterback change is likely for the Lions' next game, at home against Edmonton on Sept. 9. By then, Henry Schlichte, obtained from the Toronto Argos and looking impressive in workouts, will be eligible.

lence backfield in Bob Hall and moving into the offence line is Frank Roy, 247-pound tackle who was brought in for a look last week.

Dirty Dozen: Action!

By WAYNE THOMAS

The Dirty Dozen are 12 convicted prisoners, facing death or time for murder, robbery, rape and other violence.

The thought of their being trained in two months to become an effective commando-type force for an assault on a Nazi high command headquarters in France seems on paper, quite ridiculous.

Anyone with a smattering for detail of the Second World War knows the OSS would have made such a raid.

ACTION PREFERRED

Authenticity is put aside in preference to action, and once the film starts rolling (at the Royal) it's easy to see MGM made the right decision from the box office angle.

Lee Marvin, his acting almost on a par with his superb performance in The Professionals, picks out the 12 from an army prison.

Allied Headquarters ordered a raid on a Nazi rest estate to kill as many senior Germans as possible.

NEARLY ALL

Marvin wins the confidence and friendship of nearly all in the wild bunch, and from one, John Cassavetes, whom he kicks in the face, he commands loyalty.

Using the action-humor formula, director Robert Aldrich builds steadily to a climax, strongly supported by a cast of accomplished actors.

Then, with a scene which would send many SFCA-types into a swoon, more than 50 German officers and their female companions are locked in a basement and blown up.

It is commendable that producer Kenneth Hyman has included on genuine Second World War equipment, sets and uniforms in the film for in that respect, it is authentic.

Teen-Age Girls Treated, Men Admit Drug Charge

NANAIMO—James Melvin Hoff and Darren Allan Parris, both 20, pleaded guilty and were remanded on charges of possession of sedatives and habituates.

Hoff brought a girl, 15, to Nanaimo hospital suffering from an overdose of drugs, where she is recovering, after being in critical condition.

Another 15-year-old girl and a 20-year-old man were also treated for drug overdose.

'CBC View: No Smog? No Thanks'

PORT ALBERNI—The CBC recently decided to do a new program on the pollution problem in the Albernis.

A producer telephoned Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni, and said the program would include an interview with him.

Mayor Hammer told the producer the pollution problem has been greatly reduced in the past two years.

The surprised producer told him firmly it was his opinion, he would not be interviewed.

That is the story unfolded here by the mayor, as he and Alberni Mayor Fred Bishop increased their bombardment of the CBC's treatment of the Alberni Valley.

The flying visit of CBC official Ken Caple to the Alberni Valley Wednesday didn't do anything to cool off tempers here, over the recent CBC show Young in a Small Town.

During the visit: Mr. Caple agreed to discuss the situation during an afternoon meeting with the mayors, then left town at a moment's notice.

Van Allen

No Film Shown

● He was introduced to the press at a press conference called by Mayor Hammer, then blundered off to the Alberni Valley, and refused to talk.

● He was expected to bring a copy of the television film with him, to see it with the mayors and discuss objections. He failed to screen any footage.

● He was expected to take a quick afternoon look at youth spots, accompanied by the mayors and educators who have protested about the film. He stood this engagement up, too.

Left Right Away

"We asked Mr. Caple to spend some time with us and to have lunch and look over the various aspects of the valley," Mayor Hammer said.

"He agreed yesterday by phone, but instead left immediately after the meeting."

Mr. Caple bluntly refused to make any statement.

"I have nothing to say. I will see the press in Vancouver."

The mayors said Mr. Caple was defensive in his attitude.

Most producers are given a free hand with the productions they undertake, Mr. Caple told the civic officials.

Ouimet Sends Wire

Shortly after Mr. Caple's departure, the following wire was received from J. Alphonse Ouimet, President of the CBC:

"Regret you found program objectionable but cannot accept charges of irresponsibility, or that program was destructive and insulting."

"Respecting other claims in your telegram, I am assured there were no staged scenes in program and to best of our knowledge all were residents of Alberni Valley."

Constant downgrading of the area by the CBC has hurt the recruiting of teachers, the mayors said. Families planning to move to the Alberni would certainly be deterred by the Sunday show.

'Province Can't Touch Problem'

By ARNOLD OLSON

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — "You are all special children," said Dr. Sven Jensen. "You were chosen because you were special, and you have proved to us that our choice was wise."

He was speaking to the children at Cliffside Preparatory School here, as the summer class of Island children with special problems, graduated.

Dr. Frederick Gordon Tucker, mental health deputy minister, praised the program.

"We have to be thankful to have Dr. Jensen, with his

Dr. Jensen is director of the Mental Health Clinic for the Island.

"Without giving and taking a little, this program would have failed," Dr. Tucker said of the co-operation by UBC which sends psychiatric nurses and trained personnel to the camp, and of the willingness of the government to allow civil servants to donate time to the project.

He said the camp must commit itself in February, and he would like to see a permanent capital in reserve of $3,500.

He said 25 per cent of the income was from parents, the balance from donations throughout the community north of the Malahat.

"The day the community fully accepts the financial responsibility, will indicate the final success of the program," he concluded.

Later in an interview, Dr. Tucker said the camp is divorced from government financial aid. This is the way we have to do it, we couldn't touch the problem right now."

He said the progress of the children who are neither retarded nor unintelligent, but have emotional problems was startling and encouraging.

He said the program took 50 weeks of planning for the two weeks of actual work.

Two of the teachers who worked with the children voiced enthusiastic approval of the camp, Lynda Inglis, and Dolly Gull.

Miss Inglis added "The kids for once had a chance to do what they wanted. — The fact that they try is important."

"We pit them against their own abilities and limitations, with no pressure."

Dr. Jensen said the findings in the camp are being studied throughout Canada, and they might help establish similar camps across the country.

Most of the teachers and nurses felt that another week would prove invaluable help to the children, but Dr. Zorkin said that money was one of the main problems confronting any expansion of service.

They and the other 15 professional teachers, or nurses were pleased both with the progress of the children, and of the accomplishment they themselves had achieved.

Miss Inglis said "We are all aware that the child needs to work by himself, and gain confidence."

Each instructor files a daily report on each child, which is reviewed by two psychiatric nurses and Dr. Jensen, then sent to UBC for study.

'Two Policies' Allen Claims

PORT ALBERNI — "The company has two positions in respect to fire fighting rates," said Walter Allen, president of the IWA here.

AFTER MEETING

He made the statement following a meeting Wednesday with MacMillan Bloedel senior officials and union executive members.

"We shall take this up with the regional council of the IWA, and it will be pursued to ensure workers on fire lines are properly reimbursed."

Company officials contended MacMillan Bloedel's responsibility in the Taylor Arm fire was strictly that of an agency on Bay, 150 miles from Port Alberni, Shawnigan Lake division, 80 miles away, and others from Northwest Bay and Copper Canyon.

The union said agreement with the company and information from the Forest Service showed employees fighting fire under the terms of the agreement, and maximum rates must apply.

But they also included men from as far away as Kelsey Bay, 150 miles from Port Alberni, Shawnigan Lake division, 80 miles away, and others from Northwest Bay and Copper Canyon.

Ney Checks the Price of Soda

Hippies Are Supermerchants

NANAIMO — Centennial Committee chairman Frank Ney, whose only pace in fast, saw 47 exhibits at Expo 67 in two days.

"My mind can only assimilate so much," he explained.

During an interview, he was interrupted three times but managed to change from one subject to the other without any perceptible hesitation.

Before visiting Expo, Frank visited New York for an appearance on the television show To Tell the Truth as originator of the Great Bathing Race, held July 31.

He found that almost everyone had heard of the race and Nanaimo, but they were puzzled where British Columbia fitted in.

For the first time in the 10-year history of the show, all of the panelists knew who the person in question was.

The show will be shown today at 2 p.m. on Channels 12 and 7. "New York is the first place I've ever been to where you have to close the windows to get fresh air," he said.

"It certainly points up the great natural resources we have here on the Island," he said.

Of the hippies in New York, he found them to be the most peculiar people he had ever seen.

He estimated the hippie population to be 10,000 — equalled only by the number of tourists who came to see them.

Although they are very arty, Mr. Ney said they keep in touch with world of commerce, because soda costs $1.50 and ice cream costs $1.25.

A converted candy machine is used to paint pictures for $1.50. Expo, he says, should be seen by every Canadian who can afford to.

"The average Canadian can learn as much in a week there about the world as he would in five years of study from a book."

"La Ronde is the greatest carnival the world has ever seen," he said.

On his return to Nanaimo, he found a stack of mail referring to the bathing race.

Almost all of the mail was enthusiastic about having the race continued as a yearly event, with one exception, which said the spontaneous excitement of the first race could never be duplicated.

The Vancouver Sea Festival has offered to provide prizes if the race is re-routed to English Bay.

"It looks to me like the bathing race will go again next year," said Mr. Ney.

"If we don't do it somebody else will," he added.

This race, if continued, will serve all the Island, not just Nanaimo.

"It should be made into a three-day event, somewhat

Inferno Engulfs House

By KEN WARREN
Thirty firemen, some "flat on their bellies," quelled an "atomic" fire on Skid Mountain early Tuesday, but not before it had left one Langford family homeless and threatened others.

Forced to flee their cottage home in their night clothes seconds before it exploded in flames were Danny Hewitt, 20, his wife, Colleen, and their 14-month-old son, John.

Their partially insured home and belongings, valued at $6,500, were completely destroyed.

Langford firemen were racing to the blaze when fire reached a stove oil tank in the three-room frame dwelling at 2613 Savory.

"We didn't have to be told where the fire was," one fireman said. "The oil tank went off like an atomic bomb. It threw flames 150 feet in the air. The whole sky was red."

Flames from the tank explosion spread to nearby bush and "75-foot trees were taking off like match sticks."

The heat was so intense a man couldn't stand up to it, the fireman said. "Some of the fellows had to lie flat on their bellies to play water on the fire."

Colwood fire department was called in to help contain the five-hour blaze and sent three fire trucks to join the two dozen Langford volunteers and three trucks already there.

Nearby residents were evacuated and one house, at 2615 Savory, was said to have been "50 seconds away from being destroyed."

Mr. Hewitt said Tuesday night he and his family had been sleeping when the fire started in their home.

"I heard a noise but decided to go back to sleep," he said. "Then I heard it again. I thought it might be a racoon, rat or a mouse. I decided to investigate."

When Mr. Hewitt opened the door to the adjacent room, he discovered the fire.

"I grabbed the baby, and he and I and my wife managed to escape."

$15,600 Grant Awarded for Retirement Study

By A. M. MURPHY
A study of retirement, Victoria's "forgotten industry," will be launched as the result of a $15,600 grant received Tuesday by the Capital Region Planning Board.

Announcement of the grant was made at a meeting of the board in Victoria and simultaneously in Ottawa by the donor, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

The study, said board secretary A. H. Roberts, will fill a big gap in the knowledge of the district. Despite the fact that the Capital region is one of the best known retirement spots in Canada, there just is no positive knowledge.

"We don't know how many people come here in a year to retire, how much money they bring with them, what type of people they are or where they come from," said Mr. Roberts, and this study will be designed to answer all these questions.

"We don't even know if we should treat retirement as an industry, although we suspect that it is one of our major ones. We go after tourists to try to bring them here, but we have no positive knowledge of whether or not we should try to induce people to retire in this area."

The findings from the study would also be of great value, the secretary added, in revision of the capital regional plan.

observed, there was the social value of such a study — its value to the retired people themselves. The needs of such people would be determined and from the findings the best methods by which they could be helped in and by the community.

Because of the fact that the findings will be of national significance, the corporation is paying the major share of the cost of the study. The $15,600 grant represented about three-quarters of the total cost, Mr. Roberts said.

An extensive questionnaire will be prepared and a team will conduct a series of interviews with retired people of Greater Victoria. The study will start soon.

"This is the only study of its kind being made in Canada and we are flattered that it came here," Mr. Roberts said. "It was a logical place to choose because of our preponderance of retired people, but it also meant that the federal body had confidence in our research facilities."

Truck Is for Travel

But Vintage Beauties Grace Sailor's Yard

By JIP BRAHAN
A Victoria sailor owns four Rolls Royce cars and drives a pickup truck to work.

Submariner Roger Trudeau, 2615 Alpine Crescent, is a member of England's Rolls Royce Enthusiast Club and recently returned to Victoria after spending more than three years in Britain.

Three of the cars are 1933 six-cylinder models and the other is a 1936, also with six cylinders.

Not Mint
"They are far from being in mint condition, but they all run," said PO Trudeau, adding that he would eventually have them all in good shape.

He said it would cost about $2,000 apiece to recondition the cars, which he picked up in the backwoods of England.

"I didn't have the money to buy them from a dealer so I scoured the countryside looking for them. I found it a pleasant way to see places I would have never otherwise thought of visiting," he said.

Asked why anybody would want four Rolls Royces in the family, he replied,

"Some people collect stamps. I happen to want vintage cars."

Mr. Trudeau declined to estimate the value of his automobiles, but said they cost between $25,000 and $35,000 when new.

"The Rolls Royce people must have a fabulous filing system, because when one of my 1933s didn't have an ignition key I wrote to the company and had the key within a week."

He said it is the same with any parts he needs for the old cars.

"Give them the serial and model numbers and name the part," he said, and in an incredibly short time the needed piece will arrive.

He also pointed out it is a myth about Rolls Royce engines being sealed.

"The company warranty on a car extends for three years, and then the buyer is on his own."

Mr. Trudeau has the log books for each of the cars, which show who owned the automobiles and any medium load work done over the years.

"One was originally owned by a Sir William MacIntosh, who was a member of Parliament."

Three Months
The Esquimalt-based sailor was not too impressed with the Centennial vintage car rally which started a cross-country trek from Victoria earlier this summer.

To give his cars a paint job, he figures, will take about three months for each one.

"I'll just do it in my spare time, but each body will have to be taken down to bare metal, filled, primed and given several coats of paint."

UVic Evening Courses Widest-Ranging Ever

The University of Victoria's evening courses this winter will cover a wider subject area than ever before, a university spokesman announced Saturday.

They will also cover a wider geographical area. For the first time, courses for credit toward a university degree will be available in Duncan, Courtenay and Campbell River, if enrolment warrants.

Courses will again be held in Nanaimo.

The evening division offers credit and non-credit courses. Man's use of the sea and its resources will be described in a series of 12 lectures by specialists in marine science. Several courses in music and art will be offered.

The university has prepared two new courses for nurses on recent developments in psychiatry and physiology.

Other non-credit courses deal with computer science, classical mythology, dog breeding and current writings on Christianity. A brochure giving details is available from the evening division office at 477-6911, local 305.

'Too Many Ignoring Ban'

Woods Invaders Face Get-Tough Measures

Anyone who ignores the forest closures on lower Vancouver Island will be prosecuted, forest service information officer Tedi Jones said Tuesday.

"We're just going to have to be tougher," he said. "Too many people are ignoring the ban. Some charges are already pending."

He said all forests are closed on the Saanich Peninsula and the Gulf Islands and west to Port Renfrew, under regulations which went into effect Aug. 18. The city of Victoria is the only exception.

"This means that all industrial operations and recreation including picnicking, hiking, berry-picking or camping within half a mile of a forest area, are banned."

"A forest area means anywhere, including scrub, where a fire could take hold."

Mr. Jones said that although the larger operations had been suspended, some independent businessmen seemed to be ignoring the ban.

"Small operations, including gravel pits, are certainly included in the industrial ban," he said.

Mr. Jones said that before any operation could continue, a permit must be obtained from the local fire chief, either of

If Greater Victoria doesn't amalgamate its police and fire departments, the province will step in and do it, the civil affairs group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was told Tuesday.

In an effort to revive interest in the subject, committee chairman Clyde Savage will talk to senior police and fire department officials in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, with a view to staging an open forum at which all aspects of the issue would be explored.

"I'll tell you this," said Mr. Savage Tuesday, "that if something isn't done by the municipalities, Mr. Dan Campbell will do it for them."

He was referring to the minister of municipal affairs, a staunch champion of regional districts and a foe of duplication in municipal government.

The committee chairman said he had talked to senior officials in Victoria departments and they were all for union.

DIFFERENT STORY
"Yes," said Mrs. E. C. Worthington, "but what about Saanich and Oak Bay? It's a different story there. We've lived with this problem and been yacking about it for years."

"Well, certainly nothing will be done if someone doesn't keep at it," said Barney Simmons. "We can at least act as a catalyst."

Prince Albert Strike Settled
PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — The four-week strike of 200 woodworkers against the Crown-owned Saskatchewan Timber Board has been settled.

The employees, who had been on strike since Aug. 1, will receive a salary raise of 21 cents an hour over the next 17 months.

Saanich Choked By Data

Saanich municipal offices may turn to computers to help keep track of the sprawling municipality's statistical jungle.

The finance, legislative and commerce committee Tuesday night discussed the feasibility of having a consulting firm conduct an independent study of municipal office work to determine if the installation of a computer system would be of benefit.

The study would cost about $7,000 and the committee decided to have further discussions on the proposed study at a future meeting.

Caddy's Now a Family Man

Would you believe one little, two little, three little Caddy-horned creatures all romping in the waters off Saanich Point?

With Old Dad along to lead the way?

Well, young Guy and Dale Freeman, of 488 Fraser Street, say they saw the quartet at dusk Monday night. And they won't be shaken in their story.

Guy, 12, and Dale, 13, say they know the difference between sea lions and the real thing — the genial monster of the ocean deep that has turned Victoria waters into its personal playground over the years.

Guy went out for a walk Monday night with his black mongrel dog Mussy, and sat on some rocks near the picnic area of Saanich Point.

He said he was watching an island in Esquimalt Harbor with a pair of binoculars when he spotted Caddy.

And, lo and behold, three little Caddies reclining on the rocks.

Daddy Caddy, said Guy, was about 16 feet long — the others about six feet.

"They all had round heads, bulging eyes, long noses like dragons and were grayish-black with stringy hair on their skins," Guy recalled. "I heard them giving a sort of a growl, and then they splashed into the water."

Guy shot homebound in a trice and brought his brother Dale back.

By this time, Daddy Caddy was nowhere to be seen, but the three offspring were swimming toward rocks near the shore.

Tuesday, both youngsters steadfastly denied mistaking the Caddy family for sea lions.

"It's been seen here close up through a telescope in Oregon," said Dale. "They didn't look like what we saw."

Caddy-spotting runs in the family, Dale added.

"My mother said she saw Caddy three years ago off View Royal," he said. "It has big nostrils, a neck like a horse, and a big humped spine."

Their brothers Tom, 16, and Melville, 10, were hard put to believe them. And their pals, Jimmy Fisher, 13, and Bobby English, 11, also registered disbelief.

For awhile, the brothers thought they had the opposition outwitted — they took three pictures of Caddy and his brood.

But, alas, there wasn't enough light and the rocks were too far distant to capture the scene.

Water Runs Out, Sprinkling Banned

Take Your Car to the Laundry

Grouhel

LADYSMITH — Cars are looking a bit dirty these days ... the water ban has spread to the car wash business. And the car washers aren't happy about it.

Beal and Malone Service wrote to the village council protesting the ban on commercial car washing.

Town council said it was a splendid letter and a very good argument, but "we are critically short of water" and the ban stands.

Earlier, council imposed a complete sprinkling ban, in co-operation with the Saltair water board.

There will be penalties for infractions and the regulations will be enforced.

While the crisis lasts, constant inspection will be maintained by the three areas affected.

Flow meters on the Lady-smith system are checked daily. Waterworks officials have come to the conclusion that there is careless and deliberate waste. They decided there has been "excessive and mostly little sprinkling and irrigation." This is responsible for more than half the district water consumption.

"The situation is critical," said Mayor Kay Grouhel, "and aside from restrictions, people should be aware they must conserve water to their utmost until the rains come."

Ladysmith Ambulance Association has written to council suggesting the Ladysmith ambulance, which is housed in an annex at the Firehall, should be based adjacent to Ladysmith General Hospital.

Council is willing to explore the situation, and Ald. Jim Moore, council representative on the hospital board, will discuss the matter fully with the board and report to council.

B.C. Hydro wrote in connection with the Holland Park proposed subdivision and the relocation of poles and power line. The town's share of the relocation costs would be around $4,400, and the town would be required to arrange for the necessary easements and rights-of-way.

Mayor Grouhel remarked the costs were somewhat in excess of council's estimate, but the matter will be expedited by getting in touch with CMHC at Victoria who are waiting for such information.

Ald. Moore thought it would be a good idea to omit poles and put the cables underground.

Meanwhile it was stated the next winter works programme will probably include some brushing and clearing on the Holland Park recreation area.

Worker's Death Accident

NANAIMO — A five-man coroner's jury ruled Wednesday night that John Fenton Humphrey, 44, a Harmac worker, who died Aug. 25, met his death by accident. There was no blame attached.

Dr. Stanley M. Grant, pathologist, testified that Mr. Humphrey's larynx had been compressed and death was due to asphyxiation.

Harmac officials checked gangway equipment Mr. Humphrey was working on and found no reason for the accident.

Investigations presumed that timber had edged forward on rollers and imperceptibly advanced on Mr. Humphrey. No shout was heard.

Sheepish Pet Does Proud

COBBLE HILL — One of the highlights of this year's 100th annual Cowichan Exhibition Sept. 8 and 9, will be the sheep dog trials starting 11 a.m. Sept. 9.

One of the entries will be the border collie Jean, owned by Herman Sibbald of Cobble Hill. The competition is open to

B.C. residents and prize money totals $115.

Mr. Sibbald, who is in charge of the event, has raised border collies for the past 15 years.

He said the breed is about 300 years old.

"The training of good sheep dogs takes about four years. It requires much patience to bring a dog to top performance.

"Border collies are the best friends and helpers for us sheep breeders."

"If you have a good dog you don't need a corral to pick out sheep in a field."

Mr. Sibbald and his wife took Jean to the recent Nanaimo Exhibition and presently she quick little dog performs at the PNE.

Mr. Sibbald said "At Nanaimo one fellow bragged that he could handle any dog."

"I put two $10 bills on the seat of my truck and challenged him to take the money."

"He didn't take up the challenge and I kept my money."

Prince

Ship Hits Again

ALERT BAY (CP)—The Vancouver-based passenger-freighter Northland Prince Wednesday was involved in its second marine collision in four weeks.

SHIP CHECKED

Following the collision, the Northland Prince proceeded 10 miles south to Alert Bay for a check and minor repairs.

Four persons were X-rayed and treated for minor injuries. One was detained in hospital. The others reboarded the ship which later continued its cruise northward.

ARM BURNS

In hospital with arm burns was Mrs. Helga Smith of Vancouver. She is a cook aboard the Northland Prince and was burned in a kitchen mishap when the vessels collided.

Treated and released were Mrs. Helen Hayes of Seattle, H. Marshall of Vancouver, and Mrs. Esther McCordie of Anacortes, Wash.

ON COURSE

The accident was the second in less than a month for the Northland Prince. On Aug. 4 it collided with the 90-foot fishboat Second One in Grenville Channel, 75 miles south of Prince Rupert. The fishboat sank about an hour later, after the six men aboard had been taken aboard the Northland Prince.

TWO OTHERS

Two lesser collisions were also reported Wednesday in the Alert Bay area, about 200 miles northwest of Vancouver.

An unidentified tug collided with a fishboat identified as the W6, off Port Hardy. And the 82-foot charter fishing boat Trade Winds was holed and being towed to Vancouver by the vessel that struck her, the tug Mary Machin.

Wilson Starts Job Dispensing Plums

LONDON (CP)—Two days after Prime Minister Wilson took personal command of the economy, the British government Wednesday laid out a modest helping of economic sugar plums to the electorate. It took the form of easing restraints on time-payment terms on a variety of articles and was calculated to add to the consumer's happiness as well as giving a gentle boost to some industries whose sales lines have become clogged through the credit restrictions.

WINTER WOES

The government hoped, too, that it might have some effect in helping stave off an alarming spectre of winter unemployment. Recent figures have been pointing to a post-war high of 1,000,000 unemployed this winter unless something is done to halt the trend. (See also Page 12.)

As a political byproduct, the announcement from the government's board of trade afforded the British voter a spectacle of a dynamic Harold Wilson getting things on the upbeat personally, a couple of days after bouncing trade chief Douglas Jay out of the cabinet.

READY TO GO

In fact, the series of interlocked measures had been drafted under Jay's tenure and were ready for announcing before Wilson staged a major shuffle of his cabinet Monday night. But the fact they came out of a new deck should do Wilson no harm at September and October meetings of the powerful Trade Union Congress and the Labor party, both of which

Burke's Scores Indifference

Edward's Love Denied Her Due

LONDON (UPI)—The Duchess of Windsor, the American who caused King Edward VIII to abdicate his throne "for the woman I love," should be given the full rank of a wife of a prince to correct "the most flagrant act of discrimination" in British dynastic history, according to the new edition of Burke's Peerage.

The move is urged in the new edition to be published Sept. 14. An account of the article was carried Wednesday in The Times.

Since the accession of Queen Elizabeth to the throne in 1952, nothing but indifference to injustice could explain the refusal to lift "this bitter penalty which was inflicted quite intentionally upon the abdicated king as the last act of triumph of an outraged and hypocritical Establishment," the article says.

The Duchess, now 71, has been a favorite of the press and fashion leaders for years since her marriage to the Duke of Windsor in 1937, six months after he abdicated his throne for her.

and twice divorced before marrying the Duke, now 73. The Duchess, in her autobiography, says the duke was enraged when the British government 30 years ago refused to grant her the honorary title, "her royal highness."

The author of the article in Burke's Peerage is Philip Thomas, a barrister who is a well-known expert in genealogy and dynastic law. L. G. Pine, former editor of "Burke's Peerage," said Wednesday night, "The opinion he expresses is his own. Whether he is right or not is, of course, a matter of opinion."

In the article, Thomas referred to "the unwritten code of The Establishment in 1936, which led to the forced abdication of King Edward VIII."

While Queen Mary, the wife of Edward's father King George V, was still alive, the chagrin of a mother might excuse the refusal to recognize her daughter-in-law, Thomas wrote.

Similarly, while Edward's brother King George VI lived, the memory of why he and his elder brother was king might have impeded any reconciliation. But since the accession of

Hellyer's Budget Manoeuvre

FORCES TO SHRINK

OTTAWA (CP)—Reductions in military personnel strength—and consequently in defence commitments—are being freely predicted by defence department sources as a result of the government's clamp-down on increased expenditures in all departments.

The cabinet has rejected the defence department's request for a moderate increase in its budget for 1968-69. The current defence budget is $1,538,000,000.

Informants said Wednesday a ceiling on expenditures while costs are still rising will eventually have to mean defence cuts somewhere.

One of Defence Minister Hellyer's main objectives has been to increase the proportion of the defence budget allotted to capital expenditures—that is, weapons and equipment.

There is every indication

Mr. Hellyer plans to stick to this policy.

The inevitable result, sources say, will be a cut in the manpower strength of the armed forces and in operations and maintenance costs. This in turn will mean a reduction in defence commitments. Mr. Hellyer is said to feel that any stretch-out of capital programs such as new destroyers and CF-18 fighters would in the long run result not only in delay but in higher costs as well.

Nasser, Faisal Smiling

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Egypt and Saudi Arabia have agreed to the formation of a three-power committee to supervise the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from Yemen, Sudan Premier Mohamed Ahmed Mahgoub announced early today.

The agreement could bring to an end a civil war that has gone on in the Yemen for five years with Egypt backing the republican regime against royalist rebels supported by the Saudis. (See also Page 8.)

Egypt is believed to have had at one time about 40,000 troops in Yemen but the number was reduced following the recent Middle-East war.

After a meeting at Mahgoub's suburban residence, President Nasser of Egypt and Saudi King Faisal emerged smiling and shaking hands.

Mahgoub read a four-point agreement providing for Saudi Arabia to halt its military assistance to the rebels.

Cong Attack Kills 14 Near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong forces Wednesday ambushed a battalion of U.S. Army troops who were patrolling for guerrilla terrorists in the outskirts of Saigon and killed eight Americans and wounded 24 others in a fierce 10-hour battle.

Some helicopters were hit during the landing and additional troops reinforced the beleaguered Americans.

Only three guerrillas were reported killed. The size of the ambushing force was not known.

Blushing Lake Baffles

THREE MILE LAKE (CP)—Their lake is blushing and the residents of this Cariboo community are baffled.

"First of all it just had a light blush," said Leone Jorde. "Now it's a bright pink."

Mrs. Jorde said a Quebec couple, who said they were biologists, waded right in and took samples and later speculated it was caused by minerals in the lake.

C. E. Stentee, regional fisheries biologist said the pink coloration could come from an algae which has overriden the normal marine growth, "possibly because it has been a long hot summer."

Message to Peking

British Seek Peace Path

LONDON (AP)—Britain urged China Wednesday to open talks on normalization of relations of the two countries, embittered by serious incidents in Peking, London and Hong Kong.

In a message to Peking, Foreign Secretary George Brown advised Foreign Minister Chen Yi of China of the gravity with which the British view the present state of relations.

HONG KONG FEUD

The two countries have been feuding over Hong Kong, the British colony on China's southern border. Chinese burned the British legation Aug. 22 and demonstrators in Peking man-handled Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires Wednesday.

The latter was during an anti-British demonstration called to protest a clash in London Tuesday between police and members of the Chinese legation staff.

POLICE PRAISED

Earlier Wednesday, Brown called on police on guard outside the legation and congratulated them for the way they handled the explosive violence by the Chinese, who were armed with axes, baseball bats and iron rods.

The intent of Brown's message was to avoid a total rupture of relations because Britain wants to maintain its diplomatic outpost in Peking. There was no detectable expectation that Chen would agree to Brown's offer.

STRICT MEASURES

All Chinese Communists are forbidden to leave Britain. Peking restrains British diplomats to 400 yards between their home and office. Peking also has refused permission for dependents of diplomats to leave China.

HONG KONG (AP)—A British diplomat was manhandled in Peking Wednesday and Communist mobs rioted in Hong Kong in a violent reaction to a clash in London between police and members of Communist China's legation.

In a dispatch from Peking, the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri said several hundred persons roughed up Donald Hopson, British charge d'affaires, and forced him to bow his head.

FOREIGN DIPLOMATS

Yomiuri said anti-British demonstrators called Hopson from an apartment for foreign diplomats and demanded an apology for Tuesday's fighting in London, when police battled Chinese diplomatic personnel who brandished axes, iron bars and baseball bats.

In Hong Kong, gangs of inflamed Chinese Communists began roving the streets, rioting and throwing bombs. Police finally were forced to open fire, killing one demonstrator and wounding two others.

Rockwell Reduced To Ashes

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—The body of George Lincoln Rockwell, slain American Nazi party leader, was cremated Wednesday and the ashes returned secretly to the party's headquarters pending court action seeking the right to inter them in a military cemetery.

Matthias Koehl, now official leader of the small but boisterous movement, said the American Civil Liberties Union is seeking an injunction in the party's behalf for the right to deposit Rockwell's remains in a military cemetery. Rockwell was a U.S. Navy veteran.

The U.S. Army withdrew permission Tuesday to bury Rockwell in a national cemetery.
